ANNUAL MEETING 1922.

The Annual Meeting of the Shropshire Archæological Society was held in the Front Room of the Music Hall, Shrewsbury, on Wednesday, March 15th, 1922. Much interest was taken in the visit of Dr. Cranage and there was a large attendance of members and friends. The Chair was taken by Mr. R. Lloyd Kenyon.

THE ANNUAL REPORT.

The Annual Report of the Council was read by the Rev. W. G. D. Fletcher, F.S.A. It stated that the Society had gone on quietly with its work during the past year. It had welcomed a few new members, but had to deplore the loss of several. Among them, its Vice-Presidents, Earl Brownlow and Sir Beville Stanier, Bart., had passed away; Mr. W. W. Naunton, for many years auditor of the accounts, and Mrs. Evelyn Martin, who contributed many valuable papers to the "Transactions." Little of archæological note had occurred. The discovery of the base of one of the towers of the postern gate between the town and the Austin Friars, near the Welsh Bridge at Shrewsbury, should be recorded. The demolition of the old 17th Century Mansion of the Thones family in Castle Street, Shrewsbury, was to be regretted. Some old glass roundels representing the months had been removed from the old house at Lower Pulley and placed in the museum. Through the researches of Canon Moriarty it had been proved that most of the old glass in St. Mary's Church came, not from the Monastery of Herchenrode, as was generally supposed, but from the Cathedral Church at Treves. The Report went on to state that it had been suggested that it might be desirable to amalgamate the Shropshire Parish Register Society with the Shropshire Archaeological Society, issuing each year to members a volume of Registers and one of the usual "Transactions," and the Council would be glad of the opinion of members on the subject.

STATEMENT OF ACCOUNTS.

The Statement of Accounts presented by Mr. A. E. Cooper, Assistant Secretary, showed a balance in hand of £79 5s. 8d.

The Chairman moved the adoption of the Report and Statement of Accounts, and referring to the proposal to amalgamate with the Shropshire Parish Register Society said the Council of the latter Society had already approved of the suggestion. The membership of the Archaeological Society was about 110, and of the Parish Register Society about 92. If the Meeting adopted the Report he took it that they approved of the Council going with the consideration of the amalgamation.

Lieut.-Col. White seconded the adoption of the report and said it was a pleasure to see the Society was once more becoming active. He favoured the suggestion to amalgamate with the Parish Register Society.

The motion was carried, and on the motion of the chairman, seconded by Mr. J. H. A. Whitley, the following were appointed a Committee to go into the question of amalgamation and report to the members of the two Societies:—Mr. Lloyd Kenyon, Sir Offley Wakeman, Miss Auden, Miss Rachel Leighton the Rev. E. C. Pigot and the Rev. W. G. D. Fletcher.

ELECTION OF COUNCIL.

On the motion of Mr. J. Nurse, seconded by Mr. J. Cecil Clay, the following were elected members of the Council:—Miss Auden, Miss Chitty, Rev. Preb. J. R. Burton, Rev. Preb. W. G. Clark-Maxwell, Rev. Dr. Cranage, Rev. C. H. Drinkwater, Rev. W. G. D. Fletcher, Mr. H. E. Forrest, Mr. H. F. Harries, Dr. J. Cosmo Melvill, Rev. Canon Moriarty, Mr. J. A. Morris, Mr. E. B. Moser, Mr. J. B. Oldham, Mr. T. E. Pickering, Rev. E. C. Pigot, Mr. H. T. Weyman and Col. E. W. White.

Mr. C. J. Baker was re-elected auditor.

DR. CRANAGE ON WENLOCK PRIORY.

The Rev. Dr. D. H. S. Cranage of Cambridge, formerly of the Old Hall, Wellington, whose monumental work on the churches of Shropshire is so well known, followed with a lantern lecture on "The Priory of St. Milburgha at Much Wenlock." For upwards of an hour Dr. Cranage in a style of singular charm, gave an absorbingly interesting story of this great priory with its many beautiful architectural features that still remain. The lantern slides were from photographs by Mr. Martin J. Harding of Shrewsbury and gave an admirable idea of the striking character of this magnificent ruin and also of the wealth of skilled craftsmanship as seen in the ornamentation in carving and moulding of the stone work in the archways, capitals, arcadings and so on of the Priory and the interesting buildings that adjoin. Mr. Wilfred Thomasson admirably manipulated the lantern.

Dr. Cranage said Wenlock Priory was apparently first a house of nuns founded late in the 7th Century and presided over by St. Milburgha, daughter of Merewald, the founder of Leominster Priory and granddaughter of Penda, King of Mercia. It was destroyed by the Danes in 874, and refounded not long before the Norman Conquest by Leofric, Earl of Mercia. Between 1071 and 1086 a great house of monks was formed here by Roger de Montgomery and affiliated to the Cluniac system. It was never elevated to be an abbey. It was generally called an abbey loosely to this day, but bearing in mind its antiquity—long before Cluniac subjection—the inaccuracy might well be pardoned. This Priory was at one time wealthier than Shrewsbury Abbey, though considerably less at the Dissolution. Dr. Cranage went on to deal with the possibility of there being remains of St. Milburgha's Church and of Earl Leofric's on the site of the Priory by which they were followed, and on that he gave interesting details of excavations that he had by the invitation of the late owner, Mr. Milnes-Gaskell, carried out under the great central tower of the Priory in 1901. His first discovery a little below the present surface level was a Saxon Pulpitum and inside apse, but whether the remains of St. Milburgha's Church it was difficult to say. Further to the east he unearthed a magnificent apse, but found no trace of Leofric's Church. Dr. Cranage then dealt with the interesting features that remain of Roger de Montgomery's building—the lofty, vaulted south transept, the arcaded Chapter House, the piscina, the somewhat rare thing of a lavatory in a Priory, an interesting upper room, the library, the frater that has been vaulted and the fine octagonal lavatory with its quaint carvings of Biblical characters. The latter part of the lecture dealt with the Infirmary block and with the wonderful Prior's Lodge. Dr. Cranage acknowledged his indebtedness to Lady Catherine Milnes-Gaskell, the present owner of the priory, to Mr. M. J. Harding for his pictures, to Miss Rose Graham and others. There are few places, he said, where the majesty and charm of a great mediæval abbey were more easy to realise than at the Monastery of St. Milburgha at Much Wenlock.

On the motion of the Chairman, Dr. Cranage was heartily thanked for his lecture.

[A full account of "The Monastery of St. Milburgha of Much Wenlock, Shropshire," with numerous illustrations and a plan, was read by Dr. Cranage before the Society of Antiquaries on February 9th, 1922, and has since been printed in Vol. LXXII of Archæologia].

ANNUAL MEETING, 1924.

The Annual Meeting of the Shropshire Archæological Society, was held at the Music Hall, Shrewsbury, on Wednesday, April 2nd, 1924. There was a large attendance of Members and their friends. Amongst those present were Sir Offley Wakeman, Bart., President of the Society, in the chair; Mr. T. E. Pickering; Miss Auden, F.R.Hist. S.; Colonel E. W. White; Rev. W. G. D. Fletcher, F.S.A.; Rev. Prebendary W. G. Clark-Maxwell, F.S.A.; Mr. H. E. Forrest; Mr. J. A. Morris, &c., &c., with Mr. A. E. Cooper, Assistant Secretary.

THE ANNUAL REPORT.

The Annual Report was read by Mr. T. E. Pickering, Chairman of the Council. It stated that the Society had made steady progress during the year. Since their last Annual Meeting, however, they had lost several of their Members, foremost among them being the Rev. C. H. Drinkwater, one of the original Members of the Society at its formation in 1877, who contributed many valuable papers. They had to regret also the death of Mr. H. W. Adnitt, to whom the Society owed much as its first Hon. Secretary.

The two Societies, the Shropshire Archaeological Society and the Shropshire Parish Register Society, were now definitely amalgamated, and in future would combine to issue one volume of Transactions and one of Registers each year.

The great work in prospect for 1924 was the issue of the Shrewsbury Burgess Roll, alphabetically arranged. This would form a most important contribution to the histories of many families connected with the county, and it would undoubtedly prove of the highest value to genealogists and historians.

The Society had helped in the repair of Sutton Church, which had suffered much from ivy and rough weather.

One of the Members, Mr. E. W. Bowcock, of Wem, had brought out during the past year a very useful volume on Shropshire place names.

Owing to the generosity of Sir Charles Hyde, it had been made possible for them to renew excavation work at Ureconium during the coming summer. The work would be carried on under the joint auspices of their Society and the Birmingham Archaeological Society, with the approval of Lord Barnard and Lord Berwick, the owners of the city site.

The old excavations in the care of the Society were a cause of grave anxiety, as they, and especially the "Old Wall," had been showing signs of fresh decay. A store hut had been recently erected near the two existing wooden huts, with the object of making it easier for Mr. Jackson, the curator, to supervise the ruins, which owed so much to his interest and care.

The Society wished to put on record its appreciation of Lord Barnard's kindness in the matter of Shrewsbury Castle, and its congratulations to the town on acquiring so historic a possession as the magnificent gift of the Horticultural Society.

The Council appealed to members to bring the work of the Society before the general public, with a view to enlarging the membership and securing funds with which to help in the preservation of those memorials of the past of which the county was so justly proud. (Hear, hear).

IX.

STATEMENT OF ACCOUNTS.

The Statement of Accounts, which was read by the Assistant Secretary, showed that there was a balance in hand of £128 15s. 3d. The Wroxeter Excavation Fund showed receipts at £247 5s. 10d. and an expenditure of £118 9s. 2d., leaving a balance in hand of £128 16s. 8d. There was also a balance of £104 10s. 11d. to the credit of the Parish Register Society, now forming part of the amalgamated society.

Sir Offley Wakeman, in moving the adoption of the Report and Statement of Accounts, said he thought they might congratulate themselves on the position revealed in both. The past year had been an important one in the history of the society, because it had seen the amalgamation of the two county Societies, and varied and valuable work had been accomplished. The Shrewsbury Burgess Roll was in process of being completed by Mr. Forrest. The year had certainly been one of progress.

Miss Auden, Hon. Secretary of the Society, seconded the motion, which was carried.

MELVERLEY CHURCH.

The Chairman said he would like to say a word about another matter of great interest to their Society. The old Church at Melverley was probably known to many of the members. It was a source of extreme interest, but he was sorry to say that it was in a bad state of disrepair.

Mr. Forrest said he believed that this old church was unique in England, in that it was a purely timber structure. There were several other timber churches, but the church at Melverley was an example of very early timber work. He thought it might date from as early as the year 1400, but at present it was badly in need of repair, and an effort would be made to gather funds with the object of preserving it.

ELECTION OF COUNCIL.

The following were elected Members of the Council:—Sir Offley Wakeman, Bart.; Miss Auden, F.R.Hist. S.; Rev. Prebendary J. R. Burton; Miss Chitty; Rev. Prebendary W. G. Clark-Maxwell, F.S.A.; Rev. D. H. S. Cranage, D. Litt., F.S.A.; Rev. W. G. D. Fletcher, F.S.A.; H. E. Forrest, Esq.; H. F. Harries, Esq.; R. Lloyd Kenyon, Esq.; Charles Marston, Esq.; Rev. Canon Moriarty, D.D.; J. A. Morris, Esq.; E. B. Moser, Esq.; J. B. Oldham, Esq.; T. E. Pickering, Esq.; Rev. E. C. Pigot and Henry T. Weyman, Esq., F.S.A.

E. B. Moser, Esq. was re-elected Auditor.

LECTURE BY MR. JOHN HUMPHREYS ON THE DISCOVERY OF ANGLO-SAXON REMAINS AT BIDFORD-ON-AVON.

At the conclusion of the business of the general Meeting, an interesting lecture, illustrated by lantern slides, was delivered by Mr. John Humphreys, President of the Birmingham Archaeological Society, dealing with the valuable discoveries of Anglo-Saxon remains at Bidford-on-Avon, as a result of excavations carried out during the past two summers. The first discovery was made by accident, when a new road was being constructed, and it had proved the beginning of a very rich collection of human remains and articles of use in Saxon times, in about the year 500.

During the two seasons 213 bodies were unearthed, most of them in a state of preservation almost incredible, in view of the fact that they had lain for some 1400 years about two feet from the surface. The slides shown during the lecture testified to the splendid physique of these ancient Saxon invaders, with their firm jaws, high stature, and ample brain space. Many extremely valuable objects were found, apart from the human remains.

The lecture indicated a standard of civilisation much higher than that generally attributed to the Saxons of that period. One slide of a skull, said the lecturer, showed unmistakable signs of a surgical operation in the skull bone—a discovery which had been duplicated in several parts of the country.

Mr. H. E. Forrest, in initiating the very short discussion which followed, said that, although their Society had been in existence for many years, no definite work in regard to Saxon remains had been done in Shropshire. He thought the Society might usefully undertake a more systematic exploration for remains. He could point to one of the most remarkable examples of Saxon sculpture in the county, close to Uriconium. It was built into the tympanum of the south wall at Uppington Church. It was the only example of its kind extant in Shropshire, though they could point to remains of Saxon masonry.

Miss Auden said that in Wroxeter Church there was a shaft of a cross which had been dated as eighth or ninth century work.

The Rev. Prebendary Clark-Maxwell moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Humphreys for his interesting lecture. This was seconded by Professor E. W. White, and heartily accorded.

Replying, Mr. Humphreys referred to the forthcoming excavation work at Uriconium. It was, he said, a joint undertaking, and they hoped to have good luck. Uriconium had been a civil town quite by itself, and it interested everyone. He hoped the result of these excavations would be to enrich the Museum at Shrewsbury.

ANNUAL EXCURSION.

EXCURSION TO MONTGOMERY AND POWIS CASTLE, 1923.

The Society had an Excursion to Montgomery and Welshpool, on Tuesday 21st August, 1923, in conjunction with the Cambrian Archaeological Association, which made Oswestry its headquarters, August 20th to 25th. Our Members left Shrewsbury by motor-bus at 9-30 a.m., and proceeded to Montgomery where they joined the Cambrian Members from Oswestry.

At Montgomery, the party first of all visited Ffridd Faldwyn ("Baldwin's Forest"), a large earthen camp situated on a hill about 800 ft. high. The history of the camp was explained by Mr. Wilfred J. Hemp. From here the visitors climbed up to the castle, and Mr. J. E. Tomley gave an interesting paper on its history. The church was next visited, and here the speakers were the Rector (the Rev. W. E. Jones, M.A.), and Mr. Hemp. The Cambrian Association was joined at Montgomery by some 30 members of the Shropshire Archaeological Association.

Lunch was served at the Town Hall, Sir Evan D. Jones presiding. Mr. R. Roberts, Mayor of Montgomery, delivered a speech of welcome and Sir Evan D. Jones replied.

Mr. H. E. Forrest, of the Shropshire Archaeological Society, said they esteemed it a great privilege to come with the Cambrian Association on their visit to that ancient town. Montgomery was very close to their own borders of Shropshire, and they were not supposed to work outside their own county; but they could not live in Shropshire without being associated very largely with Welsh names and Welsh country. He supposed that properly speaking they in Shropshire ought not to be friendly towards the Welsh language. Offa went to much trouble to make a dyke to keep them apart, but the dyke was no obstacle that day, and he hoped it never would be. (Applause.)

Later the party visited Powis Castle, Welshpool, where they were received by the Countess of Powis, and shown round the interior of the historic building. At Welshpool Town Hall the charters of the Corporation were inspected. Tea was partaken of at the Royal Oak Hotel at the invitation of the Powys-land Club.

The President thanked the Club for its hospitality, and his remarks were endorsed by Col. E. W. White of the Shropshire Archaeological Society, who said the Shropshire Society had not lacked enthusiasm in any shape or form; it had been engaged and was engaged in unearthing Uriconium, and they hoped the result would be that they would find much that would be instructive and valuable. (Hear, hear.) They were active also in the reading of papers and discussions, and they had one annual excursion, which this year had been arranged in conjunction with the Cambrian.

Association. All he could say from the point of view of his Society was that associated meetings such as that one were most beneficial. They brought Shropshire into more intimate connection with Wales, and whenever similar meetings were held on the borders of Wales and Shropshire, the Shropshire Society would be glad to join in.

The return journey was made from Welshpool at 6 p.m., and the party reached Shrewsbury about 7-15, after a very pleasant day.

EXCURSION TO LUDLOW AND DISTRICT, 1924.

On Thursday, August 7th, 1924, the Society held its Annual Excursion under the leadership of Mr. H. E. Forrest. Among those present were : Mr. T. E. Pickering (Chairman of the Council), Miss H. M. Auden, F.R.Hist. S.; Rev. Preb. Burton ; with Mrs. and Miss Burton ; Rev. W. G. D. Fletcher, F.S.A. ; Mr. H. E. Forrest, F.L.S. ; Miss L. F. Chitty, with Miss P. P. Chitty ; Mr. A. E. Cooper ; the Hon. F. Hamilton Russell ; Mrs. Wood Acton ; Mrs. King ; Miss Hill ; Rev. J. A. and Mrs. Thompson ; Revs. Canon Thompson, R. Craft, W. M. D. La Touche, T. H. Parker and S. A. Woolward ; Mr. F. G. Morris ; Mr. and Mrs. Hawthorn ; Miss Wade ; Mr. Perks, with Mr. A. E. Cooper, Assistant Secretary.

The district chosen was Ludlow and its neighbourhood, and the gleaming height of Titterstone Clee dominated the landscape throughout the expedition. It was a day of sunshine and bright clouds, and the rain which at times seemed imminent did not fall.

LUDLOW.

The members and friends assembled in the beautiful Church of St. Lawrence, and after an all too brief survey of the church and its countless features of interest, the Reader's House was inspected (by kind permission of Miss Blayne). Mr. Forrest then conducted the party to the house of the Town Preacher (1611), to Lane's Hospital, the interior being kindly opened to them, and along the Town Walls.

It was pointed out that the Broad Gate, the only remaining gateway of the town, still retains its two round flanking towers, encased in cement, and the original portcullis archway. Short visits were also paid to the Old Grammar School and to the Museum where Mr. La Touche described the exhibits.

In the afternoon the party started from the Feathers Hotel in motors en route for Richard's Castle. After passing St. John's Hospital and crossing the ancient bridge over the Teme, a halt was called at the foot of the Whitcliffe, where a considerable section of the Ludlow Beds has been exposed by the cutting away of the cliff to widen the dangerous Ludford corner.

Here Mr. La Touche showed a seam of dark matter formed by the deposit of spines and scales of the toothless onchus, a fish of the Upper Silurian. During the drive through the lovely woods a short stay was made to allow of a walk up Sunny Gutter, the scene of the incident which inspired Milton's "Comus."

RICHARD'S CASTLE.

The county boundary was crossed just before the cars drew up near the ancient church of St. Bartholomew, Richard's Castle, which is situated high up on a ridge overlooking a wide expanse of Herefordshire and the adjoining country.

In the churchyard, Mr. Forrest told the story of the site and suggested parallels between the castle here and that of Shrewsbury. Richard FitzScrob (or Scrope), who began to build the castle which bears his name about the year 1060, was a Norman lord at the court of Edward the Confessor, and here we have an instance of Norman penetration into England well before the Conquest of 1066. FitzScrob seized the property of the Saxon, Edric Sylvaticus, who owned much land hereabouts, and thus began the border war between the Normans and the hero of the "Wild Ride." It was suggested that the detached tower of the church, though apparently of later date, may have been a look-out or part of the defence of the outer bailey of the castle.

The old church is now used only once a year for harvest thanksgiving, as a new one has been built nearer to Batchcott. It is of Norman foundation and consists of nave and chancel with a north transept. The south aisle was added in the 14th century, and the exterior of its east window is decorated with ball-flower ornament, which is also used on the capitals of the nave arcade. Glass of the same date remains in the heads of several of the windows, and near the font is a coffin slab with a floriated cross. The old high pews remain and there is a canopied box pew in the transept. A crypt, probably of Norman date, may exist below the chancel, and in the exterior of the north wall of the nave is an early Norman lancet, blocked.

A move was then made up to the site of the Castle on the west of the churchyard. Except for fragments and foundations of stone walls only the great earthworks remain, and these are so overgrown with trees, scrub and nettles that the plan is not easily discerned, but it seems to have consisted of a lofty keep-mound (60 feet high) rising from a base court defended by a deep moat. With the assistance of the 47th Midland Troop of Boy Scouts the Archaeologists scaled the height, and such an assembly gathered on the summit as it can rarely have witnessed.

One of the curtain walls descending from it in a north-easterly direction was found to be 6 feet thick. This border fortress seems to have little history, and was falling into decay in Leland's time. During the Civil Wars, Sir Thomas Sunderford and his Royalists were defeated near here by Colonel Birch. In the neighbourhood are several picturesque half-timbered houses. A vivid picture of old days was called up by the old family coach of the Salweys, which is kept in a building near the village green, and which Mr. Roger Salwey kindly allowed the party to see. It is hung high on leather straps, and elaborately upholstered. The armorial bearings of the Salweys and of the Hills is repeated on the trimmings and window straps, which shows the date to be after 1787, when Theophilus Richard Salwey of the Lodge married the daughter and co-heiress of Thomas Hill of Court of Hill, M.P.

After their exertions the company greatly appreciated the tea provided at Batchcott Rectory by the Rev. J. A. and Mrs. Thompson, to whom a hearty vote of thanks was accorded. A Rectory existed at Batchcott in the 13th century, and the present house stands within a moated area, but Mr. Forrest dated the present building at a little before 1700, and compared it to Newport House, Shrewsbury. A stroll round the pretty garden was much enjoyed.

ASHFORD CARBONELL.

The return journey was made by way of Ashford Carbonell, where the remarkable little Norman Church was studied, special attention being directed to the east end, with its two Norman lancets and pointed oval windows above them, a very early example of the vesica piscis form.

From Ludford bridge the cars turned down parallel to the old ford, where the earliest trackway converged to cross the Teme, then up Old Street and so back to the Feathers, the front of which was carefully examined and concluded to date from about 1620.

A walk round the outside of the Castle Walls and a glimpse into the outer bailey was all that time would permit for studying Ludlow's most famous building, but an unexpected treat was given to the few remaining members of the excursion when Archdeacon Maude very kindly invited them into his beautiful garden and showed them part of the moat cut deeply through the solid rock, with the walls of the inner court towering above it. After this a hurried descent brought them to the station in time to catch the 7-34 train back to Shrewsbury, and so concluded a most delightful day.

RECENT EXCAVATIONS AT WROXETER.

In the early summer of 1923, Sir Charles Hyde visited Wroxeter with Mr. John Humphreys, F.S.A., the President of the Birmingham Archaeological Society, and was so much impressed with the educational advantages that might be anticipated from further excavations on the site of Uronicum, that he offered to provide £1000 for three successive years to carry out the work.

Mr. Humphreys communicated with the owners of the site, and after various preliminary agreements had been entered into, it was arranged that the Birmingham and Shropshire Archaeological Societies should appoint members to form a joint committee for consultative purposes.

Digging was commenced in the autumn of 1923, under the supervision of Mr. D. Atkinson, B.A., of Manchester University, and the President and Hon. Secretary of the Birmingham Society.

As the season was already advanced, it was decided to confine the excavation work to the character of the defences of the town; and, time permitting, to continue the exploration of the Cemetery lying on the south side of Watling Street. It had been believed that the north-east portion of the town had been the only portion excavated by Wright in 1861.

This latter portion of the work was found to be unproductive, very few and ill preserved interments were found, and it became evident that the cemetery was much less extensive than had been anticipated.

The line of the town wall was traced north-west from the lane leading to the Horseshoe Inn (Watling Street) to the lane leading to Norton. Its character, as well as the contour of the ditch beyond, was ascertained, and evidence was discovered which makes it almost certain, that the Horseshoe Lane, where it enters the area of the city, is exactly on the line of the Roman Road. Naturally, in such digging finds were few, and unimportant.

In June of this year, arrangements having been made by the courtesy of the tenant, Mr. Everall, digging was commenced in the field opposite to the entrance to the original 1861 exposed excavations. The greater portion of the other end of this field had been excavated in 1912-3-4, and it is hoped, that the work now in progress will, eventually, link up the line of the buildings with the previous discoveries.

The results of the excavations afford many problems of interest and complexity, to some of which a complete solution is not yet possible. The whole area examined is occupied by a large building which extends beyond its limits on the West and North sides.

On the East, it is bounded by one of the main roads of the city, which follows approximately the line of the modern lane leading to Wroxeter Church: its southern extremity is formed by a cross road running East and West through which sections have been cut revealing successive raisings of the surface. Along the north edge of the road evidence was found suggesting the existence of a line of wooden water-pipes. The building, as far as it is at present exposed consisted of a range of chambers fronting on the main street with a large courtyard behind it. This latter is crossed by two parallel walls, and contains also what was perhaps a semi-circular foundation—its whole extent has not yet been traced—to which at present no exact parallel foundation has been found. The relation of these remains, as far as both their date and their purpose is concerned, is at present obscure.

On the South and East sides, the building was surrounded by broad corridors, the tiled roofs of which were supported on stone columns. On the south, only the rough footings and fragments of pillar bases remain, but on the east, there has been laid bare what is perhaps the most imposing colonnade yet discovered in Britain. Thirteen bases have been found, of which twelve are in their original position, placed on a stylobate of large blocks of stone. Of these ten, counting the one displaced, represent the southern half of the colonnade, the eleventh and twelfth which are larger and more widely separated, formed the main entrance to the building, and the thirteenth begins the northern range. Outside these was a broad open gutter, and beyond that a gravelled fore-court extending to the edge of the street. In front of the entrance pillars lying partly in the gutter, partly on the pavement of the fore-court, were the fragments of an inscription of considerable importance both from its bearing on the history of the building and the general organization of the province of Britain.

The inscription referred to, described by Mr. F. B. Andrews, F.S.A., in the Birmingham Daily Post, reads as follows:—

IMP.CA	DIVI·TRAIANI·PARTH
CI·FIL·DI	ERVAE·NEPOTI·TRA
IANO·H D	IANO·AVG·PONTI
CI·MAXIM	·TRIB·POT·XII·
CIV·AS·CORN

Extending the contractions and translating the inscription, it reads as follows:—

"To the Emperor Cæsar Trajanus Hadrianus, son of the deified Trajanus Parthicus, grandson of the deified Nerva, Augustus, Pontifex Maximus, holding the tribunician power for the fourteenth time, Consul for the third time, Father of his Country, the Community of Cornovii"

The slab itself is of thin laminated sand-stone about $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches thick, and is in two principal pieces, the left hand piece being widened out with a narrow slip. Overall it is about twelve feet long and four feet wide. It was probably framed round with a small moulding, fragments of which have been found, and was fixed with iron cramps and dowels. The letterings are cut into the slab in V section sinkings, and are as clear and sharp in their contour as if but a year or two old.

It seems evident that this colonnade was at least for a time used as a place of business, stalls on which wares were exposed for sale being placed between the pillars, for in the gutter was found a considerable quantity of pottery, chiefly Samian ware, lying in piles—one such consisted of twenty pieces—as though the vessels had fallen from the shelves above. In all more than two hundred vessels intact, or capable of being almost entirely restored have been recovered. There is clear evidence that the building was twice destroyed by fire, and twice wholly or in part re-built, but it is probable that even so, the site it occupied lay waste during the latest period of the occupation of the city.

Both under the colonnade and the range of rooms and beneath the floor of the courtyard, were clear traces of earlier, but still Roman occupation. The buildings, the remains of which were in places almost seven feet below the modern surface, were of wood, or in some cases wattle and daub; but their scanty remains, largely destroyed by the super-position of the stone building, were too fragmentary to enable complete plans to be recovered. Near one of them was a well, the bottom of which was twenty-eight feet below the present ground level. This contained, among miscellaneous debris, an interesting group of early pottery, a bronze vessel, and, at the bottom, a wooden bucket. It had subsequently been filled in, and the ground above it packed with sand-stone blocks to support the floor of the courtyard.

Among smaller finds the most notable is a bronze plaque about one foot in diameter, on one side of which, decorated with an elaborate wreath in low relief, was soldered a handle of a graceful design somewhat suggesting the Staffordshire knot. The purpose is uncertain, but it is among the most striking of the bronze objects so far discovered in this country, and its artistic character clearly reveals its Italian origin.

The excavations for this year, are now coming to an end, arrangements have been made to leave them open for the present: and it is intended to again continue the work in the summer of next year.

MINUTES OF THE MONTHLY COUNCIL MEETINGS.

January 11th, 1922.—The death of Mrs. Martin was reported, and the following resolution passed:—"The Council desire to express their sense of the great loss they have sustained by the death of Mrs. Martin, one of the valued members of the Society. Her earnest research work into the history of some of the parishes of the County, and many of the ancient families connected with it, and her frequent contributions to the Transactions of the Society, render her loss one that will very deeply be felt."

February 8th, 1923.—A letter read from Mr. Swinnerton-Dyer acknowledging the vote of condolence passed at the last Council Meeting, and promising to hand to the Council certain of Mrs. Martin's papers, so that her work and memory may be perpetuated in the archives of the Reference Library.

A proposal from the Shropshire Parish Register Society for amalgamation was read and adjourned for consideration to a future meeting.

April 12th, 1922.—It was reported that the stock of Transactions had been moved to the Society's new store rooms in Shoplatch, Shrewsbury.

An exchange of Transactions was agreed upon with the Royal Society of Antiquaries of Ireland.

May 10th, 1922.—Letter read from Mr. F. Jackson offering his services as Curator of Uriconium. Mr. Jackson to be asked to attend the June Meeting of the Council.

June 7th, 1922.—Mr. Jackson attended and was appointed Curator of Uriconium; he to take the whole of the entrance fees after a payment to the Society of a sum not exceeding £10 a year to cover expenses of rent, rates, insurance and repairs. The agreement to be for one year certain, and afterwards subject to 3 month's notice on either side. Mr. Jackson to take half the proceeds arising from the sale of Guides.

Letters read from the Treasurer of the Uriconium Fund to the effect that the Research Committee of the Society of Antiquaries had decided to give up all idea of resuming work at Wroxeter, and saying they were willing to hand over to the Shropshire Council the balance of the Fund amounting to £70 6s. 3d. to be used for further excavations or utilised for the upkeep of the site, and to hand over the two huts which had been erected.

The offer was accepted with thanks.

The Rev. W. G. D. Fletcher reported that the Sub-Committee appointed to consider the proposed amalgamation of this Society and the Parish Register Society had agreed that an amalgamation of the two Societies was desirable.

It was agreed to hold a General Meeting of both Societies to pass the necessary resolutions and settle details.

The Rules were considered and amended, and an order given for them to be printed in the next volume of Transactions.

July 12th, 1922.—Letter read from the Rector of Melverley stating he was about to restore the black and white timbered Church, and asking for the help of the Society.

September 13th, 1922.—Mr. Fletcher was asked to arrange for a Meeting at Wroxeter of Lord Barnard, Colonel Sowerby and this Council.

October 11th, 1922.—Attention was called to the work in progress at Messrs. Morris & Co.'s new buildings near the Welsh Bridge, which had revealed traces of old walls connected with the Austin Friars. Several members of the Council went over them under the courteous guidance of a member of the Firm.

November 8th, 1922.—It was reported that Lord Barnard would give the 24 blocks necessary for placing under the new cupboards at Wroxeter.

Miss Auden reported that she had received £15 from Mr. Charles Marston, as an acknowledgement of the exceedingly good work Mr. Jackson was doing, to be used to supplement a grant of £13 made by the Society towards the cost of lodgings.

Two additional cases ordered for Uriconium; the cost not to exceed £4.

A pencil drawing of Albright Hussey Hall was presented by Mr. A. Dovaston to the Society, to be placed in the museum.

November 21st, 1922.—Joint Meeting of the members of the Archaeological Society and the Parish Register Society to consider the proposed amalgamation:—

After a Statement by the Chairman, Sir Offley Wakeman, it was unanimously resolved that this meeting approves of the amalgamation of the two Societies.

The following 5 resolutions were then submitted to the Members of each Society separately, and carried:—

1. The Register Society to transfer all funds, as from Jan. 1st, 1923, to the Archaeological Society, such funds to be earmarked for printing Registers.
2. Members of the Register Society to become Members of the Archaeological Society from the above date, and Members of the Council of the Register Society to become Members of the Council of the Archaeological Society, until the next Election of the Council of the United Societies.

3. Until further order the subscription due to each Society to be collected by Mr. Pigot and Mr. Cooper as at present ; those paid to the Register Society to be transferred to the account of the Archaeological Society at Lloyds Bank, Shrewsbury, before the close of the financial year.
4. The £550 now standing in the names of Mr. R. Lloyd Kenyon and Rev. W. G. D. Fletcher to remain at their disposal for the sole purpose of printing Registers.
5. The United Societies to undertake to receive donations especially allocated to the printing of Registers ; but subscriptions not specially allocated to be applicable to the general purposes of the Society, in which will be included the printing of Registers.

It was further resolved that the details of such amalgamation be left to the Joint Councils of the two Societies.

After the General Meeting of Members, the Members of the Joint Councils present passed the following resolutions :—

“ That the title of the Society be “ The Shropshire Archaeological Society (with which is incorporated the Shropshire Parish Register Society).”

“ That the Archaeological and Register Parts be sent to all subscribing Members ; but the Archaeological Part only be sent to Societies which exchange Transactions ; and the Registers only to Diocesan Registries and Register Societies which exchange Registers.

“ That in 1923, 250 Archaeological Parts be printed, and 230 Register Parts.”

“ That Messrs. Hobson & Co. print the Archaeological Transactions and Mr. W. B. Walker the Registers. All the Parts to be sent out by the Assistant Secretary, Mr. Cooper.”

“ The question of what Registers be printed in 1923 to be settled by the Joint Council early next year.”

December 13th, 1922.—The Council accepted with thanks the offer of Mr. Ward to write a paper on the English Bridge.

January 16th, 1923.—Attention called to a report in the local papers that the proposed alterations to the English Bridge had the approval of this Society ; whereupon a resolution was passed that this Council regrets the statement in the public press that the Society approves the proposed alterations to the English Bridge and expresses a hope that the Ministry of Transport will safeguard the picturesque appearance of the present bridge—

Sir Offley Wakeman was requested to forward a copy of the resolution to the Ministry of Transport.

Mr. R. F. Tanner was elected as Honorary Member of the Society so long as he provides a room for storing the surplus Transactions.

February 13th, 1923.—Letter read from Sir Offley Wakeman saying the proposal for the reconstruction of the English Bridge had been turned down by the Salop County Council and enclosing a letter from the Ministry of Transport in which it was stated that the Minister was confident the works contemplated would not in any way deleteriously affect the appearance of the Bridge.

Mr. Morris called attention to a bad crack in the Old Wall at Uriconium.

March 13th, 1923.—It was decided to erect a Store Hut at Uriconium at a cost not exceeding £40.

April 10th, 1923.—It was reported that Mr. W. L. Southwell had given a further donation of £2 2s. 0d. towards the expenses at Uriconium.

Dr. Melvill and Mr. Forrest promised to visit Sutton Church and report to next Meeting.

The Assistant Secretary reported that an Official of Customs and Excise Department had called upon him with respect to the payment of Entertainment Tax upon admission fees to Uriconium.

The Council were of opinion that the Tax was not chargeable, inasmuch as inspecting the ruins was not an "entertainment" as contemplated by the Acts of Parliament under which the Duty was levied.

May 8th, 1923.—Mr. Forrest gave a report on the visit he and Dr. Melvill had made to Sutton Church and the present condition of the building. He stated that the Rector (Rev. W. H. Bather) was prepared to hand over £12 18s. 0d. to the Council for the purpose of putting the Church building in order. It was agreed to leave the spending of the money in the hands of Dr. Melvill and Mr. Forrest.

June 19th, 1923.—The death of Mr. Drinkwater was reported whereupon the following resolution was passed:—

"The Council of the Shropshire Archaeological Society desire to express their deep regret at the death on June 5th, of the Rev. Charles Henry Drinkwater. A member of the Society and of its Council from its formation and for some years past a member of the Editorial Committee, and a frequent contributor to the Transactions, his papers gave evidence of deep research and indefatigable industry. His loss will be greatly felt by Archaeologists in Shropshire, North Wales and elsewhere, and the Council feel that his death leaves a gap that will not easily be filled."

A report on the state of the Chapter House, at Buildwas Abbey, by Messrs. John Thompson & Sons, of Peterborough, was read.

July 10th, 1923.—Letter read from Canon C. F. Roberts saying the Cambrian Archaeological Association would welcome the members of this Society at the Excursion on August 21st in the Buttington, Welshpool and Gualsfield district. The invitation was accepted with thanks.

Attention was called to the mischief at Tong College and White Ladies, caused by ivy, and Canon Moriarty promised to bring the matter to the notice of the proper authority.

Upon the death of Mr. Adnitt being reported, the following resolution was passed:—

“The Council of the Archaeological Society learn with deep regret of the death of Mr. H. W. Adnitt, one of the original members of the Society, Hon. Secretary for many years and a valued contributor to its Transactions. ”

September 4th, 1923.—Letter read from Mrs. Cope offering to act as expert in Heraldry, and the Council agreed to accept her offer whenever an occasion arose.

It was decided to present a copy of the last 3 Series of Transactions to the University of London.

Miss Auden informed the meeting of the steps that had been taken by Birmingham University to proceed with the work of excavating at Wroxeter. She said that a preliminary meeting had been held at which Lord Barnard, Colonel Sowerby, Representatives of Birmingham University and Sir Offley Wakeman, herself, the Rev. W. G. D. Fletcher, Mr. J. A. Morris and Mr. H. E. Forrest attended. £3000 had been placed at the disposal of the University for further work and it was proposed to form a joint committee from this Society and the University to be responsible.

Having heard Miss Auden's statement it was resolved that the following members of this Society be appointed to serve with a similar number from the Birmingham University, on the Uriconium Excavations Committee, viz:—Miss Auden; Sir Offley Wakeman; Rev. W. G. D. Fletcher; Mr. J. A. Morris; Mr. H. E. Forrest; Mr. C. Marston; and it was further resolved that Miss Auden be empowered to act for the members of this Committee on any occasion when it was impossible to summon a meeting.

It was unanimously agreed not to give up the tenancy of the land now held from Lord Barnard and it was also agreed that the Society retain the sole right of publishing the Guide to Uriconium.

October 9th, 1923.—Mr. T. E. Pickering was elected permanent Chairman of the Council.

XXIII.

November 13th, 1923.—Mr. Charles Marston was co-opted a Member of the Council.

Rev. Prebendary Clark-Maxwell was asked to represent the Society at the Congress of Archaeological Societies on November 20th.

Mr. Forrest informed the Council that he proposed publishing the list of Freemen of the Borough of Shrewsbury, and asked if the Society would care to issue the work as a Volume of the Transactions.

It was agreed that the Society will contribute £100 towards the cost of printing and publishing the list of Freemen of the Borough of Shrewsbury, and in return Mr. Forrest shall supply the Society with 230 copies of the work ; and that the list of Freemen shall be issued by the Society to its members in 1924, instead of a Parish Register.

It was reported that 100 copies of Dr. Cranage's "Monastery of St. Milburgha at Much Wenlock" had been received, and it was decided to issue them to members at 2/- a copy. Dr. Cranage was asked to be allowed to purchase any surplus copies, and this was agreed to.

December 4th, 1923.—Sir Samuel Morris attended and read a copy of the Agreement between the Shropshire Archaeological Society the Birmingham Archaeological Society and Mr. Jackson, the Curator at Uriconium, and it was resolved that the agreement be adopted and submitted to the Birmingham Society for acceptance.

A Vote of Condolence was passed on the death of Mr. H. T. Beddows, the Librarian at Shrewsbury Free Library.

Mr. Forrest suggested that in order to relieve the Society of a part of the expense of the "Burgess Roll," non-members of the Society be asked to contribute and in return be supplied with a copy of the Roll for £1 1s. 0. Agreed.

January 9th, 1924. Resolved that a slip be printed offering the copies of Dr. Cranage's paper on Wenlock Abbey for 2/-, and a second slip be printed calling attention to the printing of the Burgess Roll, and Members who desire it may have the privilege of having their copy bound for half a guinea extra.

February 5th, 1924.—The County Surveyor was elected an Honorary Member of the Society.

The question of appointing Honorary Local Secretaries was discussed and adjourned to a future meeting.

XXIV.

March 11th, 1924.—Certain parts of the Transactions necessary to complete a set were presented to the John Rylands Library, Manchester.

May 13th, 1924.—Authority was given to Mr. J. A. Morris to arrange with the Hon. Sec. of the Birmingham Archaeological Society for the support of the Old Wall at Uriconium.

June 17th, 1924.—The question of selling odd volumes of the Transactions to non-members was discussed, and it was decided that indiscriminate sales could not be permitted. Persons desiring to obtain a copy of any part should be advised to join the Society, and failing that to obtain a copy through a member, at a fixed price.

July 15th, 1924.—The Rev. W. M. D. la Touche was appointed Hon. Curator of Geology.

The Annual Excursion was fixed for Thursday, August 7th, to be in the Ludlow District.

The Chairman was requested to communicate with Sir Charles Hyde as to the publication of reports of work done and "finds" at Uriconium, in local newspapers, &c.

September 16th, 1924.—Mr. Atkinson of the Birmingham Archaeological Society attended, and gave a report on the Uriconium excavations to the present time.

Letter read from Sir Charles Hyde and the Secretary of the Birmingham Archaeological Society as to newspaper reports of excavations and "finds" at Uriconium.

The Council were of opinion that it would be well for more information to be published in the newspapers, and with this object in view passed the following resolution:—"The Council of the Shropshire Archaeological Society feel that far wider interest should be taken in the Uriconium Excavations than is at present the case, and in view of Sir Charles Hyde's letter of 16th July, they suggest that steps should be taken to publish the photographs that have already appeared in the Birmingham Post, in other papers, and that writers should be encouraged to publish popular accounts of the work, provided they confine themselves to discoveries that have already been reported in the Birmingham Post."

The Rev. Prebendary Clark-Maxwell asked for the loan of the Troyes Seal Matrix for exhibition at the Society of Antiquaries. It was decided to forward the request to the Free Library Committee.

Miss Chitty called attention to some proposed excavations to ascertain the extent of the White Abbey, Alberbury, and it was agreed that certain members of the Council should visit the spot in company with Miss Chitty.

RULES.

1. The Society shall be called the "Shropshire Archaeological and Natural History (with which is incorporated the Shropshire Parish Register Society)."
2. The Council shall consist of the following persons, in whom the management of the Society shall be vested, that is to say:— The President, Vice-Presidents, the Editorial Committee, Hon. Treasurer, Secretary, and other officers, and not less than twelve other members. Any vacancy which may occur in the Council, or in the office of Secretary or Treasurer, shall be provisionally filled by the Council.
3. A General Meeting of the Members shall be held annually in October, at such place as the Council shall appoint. The President, or in his absence, one of the Vice-Presidents, shall have power to call an extraordinary General Meeting on giving through the Secretary, a fortnight's notice to the Members.
4. The Subscription of each member shall be paid in advance to the Secretary or Treasurer, and shall be the annual sum of One Guinea. If any Member's subscription shall be in arrears for two years, and he shall neglect to pay his subscription after being reminded by the Secretary, he shall be regarded as having ceased to be a Member of the Society.
5. The objects of the Society shall be carried out with the honorary assistance of the Members, and the funds of the Society shall be disbursed in printing and illustrating such information as shall be contributed by the Members searching for and transcribing public records, and other objects approved of by the Council, and for the necessary expenses of the Society, including the care of the Excavations at Uriconium.
6. Contributors of papers shall be entitled to twelve copies of such articles as they may contribute.
7. Every Member not in arrear of his annual subscription will be entitled to one copy of every publication of the Society.
8. The Council shall determine what number of each publication shall be printed.
9. No alteration shall be made in the Rules of the Society except at the Annual Meeting, or a General Meeting called for the purpose.

ROLAND GOSENELL, PRIOR OF WENLOCK, 1521-1526.

By ROSE GRAHAM, M.A., F.S.A., F.R. Hist. S.

When Roland Gosenell became prior of Wenlock in 1521, a small register passed into his hands which contained transcripts of some early charters and deeds and a few notes of later date. Prior Roland used it as his note book and entered in his own handwriting a series of interesting proceedings which throw light on the history of the monastery a few years before the dissolution. The register was not known to Bishop Tanner or to the editors of Dugdale's Monasticon, it was used by Eyton but he referred very briefly to Prior Roland¹. At the request of Dr. Cranage, Lord Forester deposited the register at the Society of Antiquaries, and I wish to express my very grateful thanks to him for his kindness and courtesy.

Roland Gosenell was the first prior who was elected by the monks. His predecessors had been nominated either by the priors of the French mother house of La Charité on the Loire, or their vicar general in England, or during the papal schism by the Archbishop of Canterbury and the priors of Bermondsey and Thetford², and on one or two occasions by the Crown³. In the reign of Edward IV the life of the monastery was disturbed by disputes between rival priors who were nominated by La Charité and the Crown. Prior Richard Singer and the convent took steps to secure a bull from Pope Alexander VI in 1494 by which Wenlock priory was released from all dependence on La Charité and Cluny and was placed directly under the see of Rome⁴. The monks became subject to visitation by the papal collector in London. They had the right of freely electing their prior who could enter on his office without seeking confirmation from any ecclesiastical superior, but if there was a dispute among the monks and they did not agree at the election, they were bound to ask the papal collector to confirm it. A payment of fifty gold florins was due as annates within three months of the election, and must be paid to the papal collector in London, and in default the bull became of no effect.

Prior Roland entered in the register a record in Latin of the proceedings at his election under the heading :—In negotio electiōnis forma tempore Rolandi prioris⁵. This narrative supplements in important particulars the entries concerning the election in the Hereford register of Bishop Bothe⁶ from which it would not be possible to discover that there had been any opposition. Moreover the bishop's registrar used the words et cetera and omitted several names of interest.

Prior Richard Singer, also called Wenlock, died on May 20th, 1521 and Thomas Smyth, the subprior, and the convent sent two proctors to London to notify the king and make a formal request for freedom of election. The following fees were paid on the demand of the clerks of the Chancery ;—for sealing the Letters Patent granting freedom of election £1 0s. 4d., for the Master of the Rolls 6s. 8d., for writing and enrolling the Letters Patent 6s. 8d. The proctors returned to Wenlock, and a doctor of laws, whose name is not given, was summoned to direct the procedure at the election. He instructed the subprior as president of the chapter to put a notice on the doors of the priory church summoning all those who believed that they had a right to take part in the election, which was held in the third or fourth week of June though the date is not specified. John Webley, prior of Dudley, and one monk, John Castell, prior of Preen, and John Bayly, prior of Sandwell, with one monk appeared and claimed to have a voice in the election. They were informed that in accordance with the canon law, priors of a lesser church, i.e. of dependent priories, whose professions and property were entirely distinct, were not bound to be summoned to the chapter to elect the head of the mother house except by custom ; as this was the first election at Wenlock they could not claim to be summoned by custom.

5 Ibid. ff. 20v.—22.

6 Register of Charles Bothe, Cantilupe Society, pp. 106—114.

The monks of Wenlock elected Roland Gosenell, but they were not unanimous, and immediately after the election, William Corfill, the sacrist, carried off the convent seal to Dudley priory to hinder the dispatch of the certificate of the election for the king's assent. The prior of Dudley and some of his party went to London to put their case before Cardinal Wolsey, asserting that the election was null and void, first because Roland Gosenell had not a majority of the whole chapter, secondly because he was not expressly professed as a monk of Wenlock, and thirdly because he was considered as an apostate, and he had appealed against unjust imprisonment to a superior authority without asking permission, and they also made other "contumelious" charges against him, which are not recorded.

As the convent seal had been carried off by the sacrist, William Burghill, L.L.D., vicar general of the bishop of Hereford and principal official of his consistory court, affixed his seal to the certificate of election, and it is therefore probable that he was the doctor of laws who had presided over it. Roland Gosenell came to London to ask for the king's assent. It was given on July 7th, and a fee of 13/4 was paid. The king formally notified the cardinal to execute the business which devolved on him. Roland Gosenell was kept in London over a fortnight longer. Owing to pressure of important business, Cardinal Wolsey was unable to hold the enquiry about the election in person, and on July 24th he deputed Charles Bothe, bishop of Hereford, to act for him and confirm the election, if valid. The prior returned to Wenlock, and on August 1st the subprior and monks appointed Richard Fishwick, keeper of the kitchen, and Alan Newport as their proctors, and bound themselves to ratify the acts of the proctors. On August 2nd Roland Gosenell and the proctors appeared before Bishop Bothe in the nave of the church of the Benedictine Monastery of St. Peter and St. Paul at Shrewsbury in which he was holding a consistory court, and delivered Cardinal Wolsey's commission with a letter from the subprior and convent requesting him to act upon it. The letters were read aloud and received with respect, and the bishop immediately appointed August 9th for the inquiry to be held in Wenlock priory church, and issued a citation to all who opposed or supported the election to be present, mentioning by name the priors of Dudley, Preen and Sandwell and five of the Wenlock monks, Thomas Acton, cellarer, W. Wenlock, sacrist and precentor, John Wellington, Thomas Shrewsbury, keeper of the refectory, and W. Bange. It was posted on the doors of Wenlock priory church.

The bishop opened the inquiry in the nave at Wenlock priory on August 9th. One of the proctors of the convent presented a petition for the confirmation of the election, asserting that all who had a right to be summoned had taken part in it, and the subprior, the almoner, the keeper of the kitchen and the cellarer gave evidence in support of the petition. Four other witnesses, inhabitants of Bridgnorth, testified that Ronald Gosenell was born in wedlock and was of lawful age. The certificate of the vicar general of Lichfield, dated July 22nd, 1521, stated that according to the entry in the bishop's register, Roland Bridgnorth alias Gowsenell, monk of Wenlock, in deacon's orders, was ordained priest in the cathedral church of Lichfield on September 19th, 1507. The opposers brought forward the objections which they had already made to Cardinal Wolsey and alleged that he had not been professed expressly as a monk of Wenlock and that he was guilty of apostacy. After hearing the witnesses and taking legal advice, the bishop gave judgment that the allegations against the person of the prior elect were untrue, there was no act of apostacy, and the election was valid. He decreed the confirmation of the election, sealed the document and sent it to Cardinal Wolsey; Wolsey notified the king and requested him to instruct the escheators to restore the temporalities to the prior. The king sent a writ sealed with his privy seal to the bishop and to the abbot of Shrewsbury to receive the oath of fealty, and Prior Roland noted in the register "the fee for the writ is 6/8 in the common estimation, although the clerks take as much as they can get." The oath was administered to him in these words: "Ye shall swere that ye shalbe faithfull and trewe, and feith and trouth shall bere unto the kyng our soveraigne lord and his heires kynges of England, of lyfe and lymme and ertyly worship to lyfe and dye against all people. And diligently ye shalbe entendant unto the kynges nedes and besoignes after your witte and power. And the kyngis counsell ye shall kepe and layn. And truly ye shall knowledge an doo the services due of the temporalities of your priorie of Wenlok the which ye clayme to hold of our said soveraign lord the kyng, And the which he geveth you. And to hym and his commandments in that that to you atteyneth and belongeth for your temporalties ye shalbe obeissaunt. As God helpe you and his sayncts."⁷

Bishop Bothe and the abbot of Shrewsbury notified the king, and on October 10th he instructed the escheators to restore the temporalities. A payment was made to the king according to the length of the vacancy, and the following fees were also demanded by the clerks of the chancery :—

To the great Chamberlain of England	2	0	0
To the Master of the Rolls	3	0	0
For writing and enrolling	1	0	0
To the clerks of the hanaper	0	6	8
To the chafer of the wax	0	1	0
For the fee of the Petty Bag because the Cardinal had the king's seal with him at Calais	2	0	0

The prior also took an oath of allegiance to the pope, which was entered in Latin in Bishop Bothe's register. "I swear on the holy Gospels that I will be obedient to his holiness the lord pope and his successors, and I will protect and defend the rights and liberties of the priory to the utmost of my ability, so help me God and His holy Gospels." In accordance with the bull of Alexander VI, under which the election was held, he paid fifty gold florins to the papal collector in London and he noted in the margin that this sum represented £10 or £11 sterling⁸. At the value of money at the beginning of the present century the election had cost over £120 in fees without reckoning travelling expenses and lodging in London.

Prior Roland was able and ambitious, and he at once petitioned the pope for further privileges. On March 10th, 1522 Pope Adrian VI confirmed the bull of his predecessor and granted to the present prior, for himself alone, the use of the mitre, ring, pastoral staff, and other ornaments of a bishop⁹. He was empowered to give solemn benediction to the people in the priory church and in other places dependent on the monastery. He could confer the four minor orders on his monks and novices, on secular persons and the servants of the monastery, and wherever he celebrated mass he could grant an indulgence of forty days to those persons present who were truly penitent and had made their confessions.

He also aspired to become a titular bishop so that he might act as a suffragan in any diocese, and a draft of the petition to the pope for the next vacant see was entered in his register, with the date 1523¹⁰. He wished to hold Wenlock priory and two benefices, or some alternative to provide him with an income as a suffragan, and the petition was said to be made at the request of the bishop of Hereford. Thomas Fowler, prior of Monmouth, who had the title "episcopus Lachorensis" died in 1520; he had acted in the diocese of Hereford for Bishop Mayew since 1506¹¹ and had received a fresh commission from Bishop Bothe in 1517¹² and had held several ordinations for him. The bishop needed the help of a suffragan, and had considered the prior of Wenlock, but his choice fell on John Smart, abbot of Wigmore, and on July 2nd, 1523, he requested his agent in London to write to the papal curia for bulls providing him with a titular bishopric¹³. The business took three years and the abbot of Wigmore was not consecrated to the see of Pavada until 1526¹⁴.

Roland Gosenell was very active as prior, and made a note that in his first year of office he bought the little bells which were rung at the hours, and he put new glass in great part into the windows of the nave and whitewashed it¹⁵. He painted the great hall and put new glass into certain windows and rebuilt the louvre. At Oxenbold he rebuilt the fish house and paved the great hall and in his second year he glazed it. At Oxenbold he built the chimney of the kitchen and at Barrow he made the screen.

Apparently under Prior Richard Singer who had ruled the monastery for thirty-six years, the monks had gone in and out as they pleased, and hunted and played cards and other games, and had shown hospitality to their relations and friends of both sexes. Prior Roland, according to his own account, restrained their old unlawful liberties and closed up back doors to the cloister and the monastery, and in 1523 they entered into a confederacy against him, and refused to come to the chapter house when he summoned them, and he alleged that he went daily in fear of his life, as he had caused certain of his friends to accompany with them to know their malicious purpose¹⁶. He appealed to Cardinal Wolsey as papal legate, and Wolsey appointed Dr. John Allen, canon of Lincoln, as his commissary general to visit and reform the monastery, and he arrived at Wenlock early in September, 1523.

In Prior Roland's register there is a form for the visitation of a monastery with the articles of inquiry ; they had probably been framed by Cardinal Wolsey for a general visitation of monasteries, and were used by Dr. Allen at Wenlock. On September 7th in the chapterhouse he gave the prior and monks a series of injunctions, counsels and exhortations in a summary form in the vulgar tongue, and afterwards he sent them written in full in Latin to the prior, commanding that he or the subprior or anyone acting as president of the chapter should have them read and explained to all the monks assembled in chapter once a fortnight for a year. He instructed the prior to see that they were entered in the registers or archives of the house for their perpetual remembrance. Prior Roland obeyed his command and copied them into his register.¹⁷ As it is impossible to give a fair account in a summary, they have been freely translated.

The injunctions were as follows :—

1. That each and all of the monks shall beware in future of endeavouring to cloak corrupt practices, under the name of custom, for instance with reference to silence, the canonical hours, the fasts of the rule and other ceremonies of monastic life, under pain of mortal sin.
2. That in future professed monks, even if they are not in orders, shall go to confession and communion once a month, subdeacons every third Sunday, deacons once a fortnight, and priests, if any there be who are not celebrating on account of weakness and illness, shall communicate every Sunday at least. In future the prior must see to this more diligently on pain of suspension from his office for a month if he is found remiss.

17 Wenlock Register, ff. 26—29, of Appendix. I am much indebted to the Bishop of Truro and to Mr. A. Hamilton Thompson for their kind help in translating difficult points in these injunctions.

3. That monks are straitly commanded not only to keep the rule of continuous silence more strictly in the church, refectory and dormitory and in the cloister also at certain hours and places, but also to refrain absolutely from drunkenness, tippling and insobriety under penalty of imprisonment for a month as the prior decrees.

4. That a master or tutor shall be appointed for the young monks to teach them grammar and humanities, and also to instruct them in the observance of monastic life. The rule of the order shall be expounded to them at least once a week, so that not only shall they understand the meaning of the rule which they are pledged to keep, but also that they may be better fitted to become priests. The penalty for neglect of this injunction by the prior is suspension from officiating at divine office for a month.

5. That henceforth the monks shall not hold conversations with women, nor shall women come frequently to the monastery, and no women whether relations or others shall enter the cloister on the penalty of an order of purgation ipso facto.

6. That the greater part of the monks shall be present at the divine offices and especially at nocturns, and also that all shall sleep in the dormitory, and at least once a day they shall eat in the refectory, and the prior is forbidden to give dispensations in such cases except for reasons of real importance, under pain of sequestration.

7. That twice a year the prior shall make a serious and careful search to see that none of the monks are in possession of private property in accordance with the constitution of the legate Ottobon, under penalty of suspension ipso facto from the administration of his office.

8. That henceforth the monks shall wear suitable habits of black serge of English or French make only, and not of worsted, and they shall have the proper tonsure which befits their religious profession, under penalty not only of the withdrawal of their allowance, but also of more serious correction.

9. That the common seal shall be kept with the muniments relating to the temporalities and spiritualities in the building or room in which the charters are stored so as to safeguard them from various dangers which may occur to them, under penalty of suspension of the officials and keepers from their offices.

10. That from henceforth when the common seal of the convent is affixed, the deed must bear not merely a general signature, but the signature of each several monk, whether he consents or dissents especially in financial matters. All documents of this kind must be put before the monks for at least twenty four hours, so that it may be clear from their signatures not only that the greater part of the chapter consented, but also that there may be a full discussion as to whether the business in hand is useful and necessary or not, under the penalty that what you seem to have shall be taken away from you.

11. That at least once a year either in the presence of all the monks, or of the more prudent and older brethren, the prior shall render full clear and complete accounts of his administration for the past year, and he shall hand over a copy collated with the original and signed by him, under penalty of sequestration for a year.

12. That keepers shall be appointed to keep the doors of thir cloister, the chapterhouse and the dormitory in the day and also to lock them at night, and they shall attend diligently to thee duties under penalty of the sentence of anathema.

13. That no one under the age of fifteen shall be admitted to wear the monastic habit, or remain in the monastery beyond the year of probation unless within a month afterwards he shall make his solemn profession in the chapter house, under penalty of being interdicted from entering the church.

14. That monks shall refrain from hunting and shall expel their dogs not only from the cloister and the dormitory, but also from the monastery, under penalty of the canon law and of the rule.

15. That monks shall not play cards, marbles^{17a} or chess for money within the monastery or elsewhere, under penalty of fasting on bread and water for three days.

16. That henceforth the fragments left in the refectory, the misericord and at the prior's table, shall not be misused but put to pious use and given to the poor, especially to those living in the neighbourhood of the monastery, and that a monk shall be chosen as almoner who is suitable in age, character and integrity for the office, under penalty of divine vengeance.

17. That the rule of silence may be kept more strictly in the refectory, for breaches of the same each monk shall be fined twopence on feast days, when more than one course was served, for each course, and twopence, neither more nor less, on ordinary days, under penalty of the wrath of the legate a latere.

18. That bevers [a draught of wine or beer allowed in addition to the ordinary drink at meals] shall be taken in silence in the refectory and not elsewhere, and by permission, and there shall be no messing apart except in the misericord or at the prior's table, under the penalty for contempt of this command.

19. That none of the monks shall take any boys into the dormitory or have them habitually in their private company, forming a household within the monastery, or talk with them in chambers or elsewhere, so as to avoid sinister suspicions which arise out of such intercourse, under the penalty suitable for such crimes of which it is better to be ignorant than to have knowledge.

20. That monks are forbidden to carry arms within the monastery and they shall not presume to hold conventicles or little councils and they shall abstain from disparagement and murmuring, and also from conspiracy against their order, and from the defence of evildoers under penalty of excommunication.

21. That monks shall not presume to take recreation in the garden after compline or go outside the monastery, and they shall not indulge in late drinking, but go to the dormitory and keep the rule of silence under the penalty imposed on those who transgress it, for fifteen days in succession, or as may be defined.

22. That the number of monks shall be increased, according to the surplus resources of the monastery, at a suitable time, to make better provision for divine worship, under penalty of the law.

23. That books, chalices, linen altar cloths and albs, and other ornaments appointed for divine worship shall be kept in better repair and washed more thoroughly and taken more care of, and that lights in the dormitory and elsewhere shall be lighted under penalty of suspension of the subprior from office for six months.

24. That the monks of Wenlock who hold office inside or outside the monastery shall resign their offices to the prior once a year and give them up of their own accord without qualification so that by reason of long administration they may not have the expectation of enjoying them perpetually, under penalty of holding private property ipso facto.

25. That they use Gregorian music and that they sing distinctly, pronouncing the psalms with a deliberate enunciation of the syllables, making a pause in the middle of the verse as well as at the end, on pain of fasting upon bread and water each time they fail in this respect.

26. Lastly that the prior, the subprior and other presidents, officials and monks shall not presume secretly or publicly to inquire of any of them touching the comporta,^{17b} what he deposed at this legatine visitation under penalty of contempt of the wrath of the legate.

These injunctions were followed by a series with the heading "Counsels and Exhortations."

1. It is advisable that the monks shall practise mechanical arts, so that their leisure may not be a weapon for the ancient enemy to enslave them.

2. Monks shall abstain from every kind of flesh food in the refectory until they have received a dispensation from the papacy.

3. It is advisable to restrict recreation [i.e. a stay at a manor or grange during convalescence after the regular bleedings] and in compensation to allow two hours a day in the monastery, for a suitable period, in addition to the ordinary daily time for relaxation.

4. The prior or monks when on a journey shall leave their horses at the inn, and spend the night at monasteries if there is a convenient house of their own order in the neighbourhood.

5. The monks are advised to observe a third Lent of fasting which represents the fast of Christ's Apostles from Ascension Day to Whit Sunday; and to suppress the second Lent so as to make up for the aforesaid third Lent. And it begins only on Quinquagesima Sunday.

6. It is advisable that the prior shall not exceed the bounds of moderation in correcting the excesses of the monks, and that he shall be pleasant, affable, kind and friendly to them with due respect to the dignity of a father in his relations with his sons.

^{17b} The comporta are the visitor's findings from the detecta given privately by each monk on deposition. These were published at the conclusion of the visitation or soon after, but the detecta were not published, and thus the source of the comporta was a subject of interest, cf. Visitations of Religious Houses in the diocese of Lincoln ed. A. Hamilton Thompson, Vol. I., pp. x., xi. Canterbury and York Society.

7. It is advisable that in maintaining his household of servants or lay folk the prior shall be careful to keep within the bounds of moderation in proportion to the charges laid upon the monastery, so that he may not seem to waste the goods of the monastery imprudently on the pretext of hospitality, and also that he may not incur the stigma of luxurious living by an excessive retinue of servants and ceremony at his table.

8. It is advisable that unnecessary processions shall not be held round the circuit of the monastery, and they shall devote themselves more to observing the ceremonies of the real monastic life.

9. Lastly it is advisable as in the new legatine constitutions that monks shall be content with food and clothes instead of receiving money allowances for a stipend or salary or office, and they shall avoid dispensations to hold benefices and conversation with women which may give rise to sinister suspicions: nevertheless they may receive payment for their presence at funerals.

Some of the monks presented an indictment of twenty articles against the prior to Dr. Allen who suspended him from office, and referred the indictment to Cardinal Wolsey. It is known only from the prior's answer to "the complaint laid against him for vexation by surmise of certain of his convent and other of his enemies¹⁸." The minority who had disputed his election again brought forward the charges which had been declared by the bishop of Hereford to have no foundation. He maintained that he had never written "against his late master, excepting an account of his acts in a chronicle of all the priors which he revoked at his said master's wish." He had never borrowed money except as appeared in his accounts shown to Dr. Allen, and he had cut down no timber, but crop and lop. He had discharged the bailiff at Eton for his evil demeanour. The sum of £4 given him in a chalice made of broken silver by brother Richard Fishwike, keeper of the kitchen in 1521, was in exchange for certain bells. He had taken an ivory crosier, said to be that of St. Milburga, and ornamented it with jewels, and he had appropriated other ornaments which he intended to have put into a mitre "for the honour of God and the house."

On June 26th, 1524, Dr. Allen dissolved the visitation and restored the prior to office¹⁹. Roland wrote in his own hand that the document had the seal of the cardinal which was affixed in his house at Westminster, and he added a note that besides the food supplied to the officials who came to Wenlock, a fee for the visitation was paid to Wolsey of £17 representing about £200 at the present value.

There is no entry in the register to throw light on the last two years of Prior Roland's rule. Sandwell priory was one of the small monasteries dissolved by the cardinal for the purpose of endowing his colleges at Ipswich and Oxford in 1524²⁰; the prior of Sandwell, John Bayly, with one monk returned to the mother house and in December, 1526²¹ he succeeded Roland as prior of Wenlock.²² The last entry in the register is the king's writ to the abbot of Shrewsbury to administer the oath of obedience to John Bayly.

THE MONKS OF MUCH WENLOCK

AFTER THE SUPPRESSION.

By the Rev. PREBENDARY CLARK-MAXWELL, M.A., F.S.A.

Most of the monks mentioned in Miss Graham's paper on Roland Gosnell, are mentioned again in the list of those pensioned at the surrender of the Priory in January 1540, as well as in the extracts from the Register of Sir Thomas Butler, Vicar of Much Wenlock 1524-1562¹, which were published in the Transactions 1st Series, Vol. VI. These invaluable notes make it possible to construct with exceptional clearness in the case of Wenlock, a picture of that which probably happened in the neighbourhood of every dissolved monastery.

The monks whose names occur in connexion with the election of the Prior in 1521, were : John Webley, Prior of Dudley ; John Bayly, Prior of Sandwell, and John Castell, Prior of Preen ; Richard Fysshewike and Alan Newporte, proctors for the convent in seeking Wolsey's assent to Gosenell's election ; Thomas Smith, sub-prior, Thomas Rowde, almoner, Richard Fysshewike (again), kitchener, Thomas Acton, cellarer, who bore testimony to his profession as monk (which profession must have taken place at least fourteen years before, since his Ordination certificate of Sept. 19, 1507, describes him then as " Monk of Wenlock " ; W. Corfill (or Wenlock, from his birthplace) the sacrist who carried off the seal to Dudley ; Thos. Shrewsbury the fraterer ; W. Bange and John Wellington.

Of these, John Webley has disappeared by the date of the surrender, giving place to Thos. Shrewsburie, fraterer in 1521, who is described in the pension list as prior of Dudley, and as such receives a pension of £10. John Bayly, as stated by Miss Graham, came to Wenlock in 1524, and succeeded Gosenell as Prior. At the Dissolution he received a pension of £80, and so was able to live in comfort at the Manor-place in Madeley till his death on Christmas Day of 1552. "25 Dec. departed and dyed in the manor place of Madeley about ix of the clock in the nyght Sir John Baily Clercke the last Prior of Moncks that was in the Monastre of Moch Wenlok prior ther at the tyme of the surrender therof whose bodie was buried on the morrow v^z in f^o to Sti Stephan in the p^{ish} Churche of Madeley aforesaid." Sir John had in his lifetime given to Much Wenlock Church a "Cope of red and blewe tafata inbrodered with gold and sylver, in condition that part of the paroche shuld at his decess mete his bodie at Byldwas bryge and so bryng hym to Wenloke churche to be buried," but though Ric. Lawley Esq, William More, Rich. Legge and John Bradeley had given their bond that this should be done, they did not keep their bargain. Probably they considered that as Edward VI's commissioners had carried away the cope they were released from their obligation.

1. Instituted Sept. 24, 1524 (Bothe Register, p. 337) ; last entry in Register, May or June, 1562 ; John Jeffres appointed to Much Wenlock, Aug. 7, 1562 ; cause of vacancy not stated, but probably not deprivation, as Butler seems to have conformed throughout ; not to be confused with the last Abbot of Shrewsbury (see Transactions, 4th Series, VIII., p. 55).

John Castell who was also known as John Gough, the Prior of Preen in 1521, lost that position in consequence of the sale of Preen by the Prior of Wenlock, about three years before the Dissolution. The question of the independence of the Prior of Preen, and of the relation between him and the Prior of Wenlock, formed the subject of an enquiry held at Hughley, in 1590 (Sparrow, Hist. of Church Preen, p. 70ff.) The evidence seems to shew that the Prior of Preen was liable to be punished by his superior at Wenlock, and that Castle had actually been so punished by imprisonment at Wenlock for a fortnight, during which time Richard Fishwick had been sent from Wenlock to take charge of the house. After the sale, Castle had gone up to London to protest, and had been awarded compensation; he then joined the convent at Wenlock, from which presumably he had been sent to Preen; and received a pension of £6 at the surrender. Subsequently he served Monk Hopton as curate, and was buried at Wenlock in 1544. Butler records under the date of Sept. 13 in that year "here was buried out of Hopton Monachorum Sir John Gogh, ther at that time Curate, otherwise called Sir John Castle, sometime Monck in the monastre of S. Milb'ge [pres'tor in Moch Wenlok]² and Prior of the cell in Preen, the last Prior that ther was whose bodie is here buried."

Richard Fishwick, who took Castle's place for a time at Preen, is third on the Pension list and receives £6 : 13 : 4. He is described by Thomas Butler as "monk and sexten for the space of thretty Er and above in Monasterie of S' Milburge." He probably means that he was monk for upwards of thirty years, and also (latterly) sacristan; and we may perhaps imagine him succeeding William Corfild or Corvehill in that post, when the latter was promoted to the office of sub-prior. Afterwards Fishwick seems to have served the chapel of Bourton in the parish of Wenlock, and died in 1543. Under 15 Oct. Butler notes "Richard Fysshwyke p'st sometyme Monck and Sexten for the space of thretty Er and above in the Monastre of St. Milburge whose body lieth in the Churkeyard wtin to Clothyards to the Crosse betwixt it and the Churche."

The sub prior in 1521, Thomas Smith, has disappeared by 1540, and we should have concluded that he had died in the interval; but Butler records the death in 1549 of "Thomas Smyth sometime monk in the Monastere of St. Milburge and at his dep'ting Sub-prior of the same, and of the age of 115 years, as I Sir T. Botelar heard him say." Whether actually as old as this, or not, he was evidently of very advanced age; and the inference is that Thomas Smyth, some time between 1521 and 1540 resigned his office on account of age, and seeking a "capacity," lived outside the Priory, though probably serving no cure. These "capacities" would enable a monk to leave his cloister, and to serve a secular cure, if appointed thereto. (see Gasquet, Henry VIII and the English Monasteries, ii., 470).

Alan Newport is probably identical with Alan Cliff, "sometyme monk in this Monasterie of St. Milburge," who succeeded Thomas Mason as vicar of Kinlet. One entry in Butler's Register is "1543 23 Jan. Within the chancell of the blessed Lady before her image, the body of Thos. Mason p'st borne within this borow of Moch Wenlok, somtyme vicar of Kynlett, who resigned to Sir Alane Cliff sometyme monk of the monastre of St. Mylburge, and the said Sir Thos. lyeth hard unto the parclosse of the the Quyre his fyett reching to tharch."

2. The words in brackets occur only in Hartshorne's extracts. He seems to have copied the entry twice, and the second time, the words read "here in Moch Wenlok" which runs more in Butler's usual style.

As no Alan appears in the pension list and as Cliff's appointment to Kinlet is dated Feb. 1539 (Bothe Reg. p. 382), it seems obvious that he too obtained a "capacity" before the surrender. And the same seems to be true of Prior Gosnell himself. His name does not appear in the Pension list, but we find a Roland Gosnell instituted to the rectory of Oldbury (near Bridgnorth) on Mar. 6, 1539 (Bothe Reg. p. 382). After this, his history is not very clear; on June 27, 1555, he is instituted to the vicarage of Tenbury, and as on April 15, 1556, we find John Grise instituted to "Wobery" we should naturally conclude that Gosnell had moved from Oldbury, valued at £5 in the King's Books, to the richer living of Tenbury, which the same authority gives as worth £21. But if this was so, Grise's appointment was ignored; for we find that on Dec. 5, 1560 Richard Sherer is appointed to Oldbury, vacant by the deprivation of Roland Goswell, either by Bishop Scory or the Queen's visitors. In any case further misfortune overtook him at Tenbury also, from which he was ejected in the early part of 1562; for we find on June 5 of that year that W. Mappe was instituted to Tenbury on the deprivation of Rowland Gosnell³. What happened to him afterwards, we do not know; but we hope that the last few years of his life (he must by that time have been eighty years old at the least) were spent without molestation, if in poverty, and that his stormy career had a peaceful close.

Thomas Prowde, almoner in 1521, I have not found again. Thomas Acton, cellarar in 1521, and pensioned at £6 in 1540, officiated at a funeral at Wenlock in Nov. 1544 and possibly served the Chapel at Barrow, as he took a wedding there in 1549. He died in 1551 and was buried at Wenlock. "Sept. 19 Buried Sir Thos. Acton, otherwise called Thos. Doughtie, somtyme monk and celerer of the Monastrie of St. Milburge, buried in the Porch."

The recalcitrant sacrist of 1521, Wm. Corfill, has become sub-prior by 1540. He was a native of Wenlock, and after the surrender became priest of our Lady's service in the parish church, though this cannot have been till 1543, when Butler records the burial on May 16 of "Sir Hugh Barker p'ist Chapellain of the service of our blessed lady here within this Church of the Holy Trinity of Moch Wenlock." Nor did he hold this appointment long, for he was buried on May 26, 1546 with perhaps the most pathetic of all the little obituary notices by Sir Thomas Butler: "Here was buried out of the Strete called Mardfold out of the Tow tenements next unto Sancte Owens Well on the same side of the well, the body of Sir Willm. Corvehill Preist, of the Service of O^r blessed Lady St. Marie, within the Churche of the holy Trinite &c. which two hows belonging to the said Service he had in his occupation, with ther appertinances in part of his wages, which was viij markes, the said hows in an overplus: whose body was buried in the chancell of our blessed Ladie befor the altar under the Ston in the myddle of the said altare, upon the left hande as ye Treade and stand on the heighest steppe of the three befor the said altare; whose fete stretch forth under the said altare to the wall in the East of the altare, the body ther lying within the Erth in a tomb of lyme and ston which he caused to be made for himselfe for that intent; after the reryng & buldyng of the new Ruff of the said Chansell, which rerinyng framyng & new reparyng of the altare & chancell was don throw the councill of the said Sir Wm. Corvehill, who was excellently & singularly experte in dyverse of the vij liberal sciences & especially in geometre, not greatly by speculacon, but by experiance; and few or non of handye crafte but that he had a very gud insight in them, as the making of organs, of a clocke and chimes, an in kerving, in Masonrie, and weving of Silke, an in peynting; and noe instrument of Musike beyng but that he coulde mende it, and many gud ghifts the man had, and a very pacient man, and full honeste in his conversacon and lyving; borne here in this borowe of Moche Wenlok and somtyme moncke in the monastrie of St. Mylb'ge here. Two brethren he had one called Dominus John, Monke in the said Monastrie, and a Secular prieste called Sir Andrew Corvehill who dyed at Croydon beside London, on whose soule & all Christian soules Almighty God have mercy. Amen. All this contrey hath a great losse of the death of the said Sir Wm. Corvehill for he was a gud Bell fownder & a maker of the frame for bells." (N.B. Was this brother John, who does not figure on the pension list, another who obtained a "capacity," and was he the same as Sir John Corvehill, curate of Preen?).

3. H. Gee, Elizabethan Clergy, etc., pp. 258, 278; Canon Bannister, Institutions, etc., Hereford, pp. 11 (bis.), 13, 15. The last reference gives Gosnell as instituted to Tenbury in 1562; but this is merely a slip.

W. Bange is the Wm. Bange who had a pension of £6 at the surrender, and is several times mentioned by Butler. He is a "gossib" or sponsor at a christening in 1541 and served the cure in the chapel of Eaton Constantine in Leighton parish, and died in 1562 when on " May 28 being Wensday in the Witson weke was buried at Leighton the bodie of Sir Wm. Bange somtyme monk of Wenlock in the tyme of the worshipfull father Dop'ne Richard Syng Prior of the said Monasterie and of Roland Brudge Prior of the same next after and also in the tyme of Dop'ne John Baily oderwise called Dop'ne John Cressage or Christseche Prior of the said Monastery which Sir Wm. Bange died at Eaton Constantine within the parish of Leighton being then serving Priest in the Chapel at Eaton and in the tyme of St. Thomas Lydgate vicar of Leighton who somtyme was monk in the Monastery of Buldwas in the time of Abbot Stephen there."

John Wellington I have not come across.

Of the other monks in the list, we can give some account in every case but one, that of Richard Norgrove.

Richard Fenymer as probably the same as Sir Richard Fenymer, curate of Acton Round, in 1555.

Thomas Ball took a funeral at Wenlock in 1559 " by chance being there," and so probably was not resident in Wenlock, though possibly so in the neighbourhood.

Wm. Morthowe, officiated at the funeral of Nov. 11, 1544 mentioned above, and in the year following is described as curate of Hopton (succeeding therein John Gogh or Castle?).

John Lee I identify with some hesitation with Sir John Lye, parson of Broseley, buried at Wenlock Jan. 15, 1560 (Hartshorne's extract states that he took the funeral).

Wm. Chamberlayn is mentioned in 1543 as "sometyme monk in the Monastere of St. Milburge" and again in 1544. In the Chantry Survey of Chantries in Edward VI. he is returned as Incumbent of our Lady's Service in Wenlock Church worth £3 : 15 : 10 "with other living." He must have succeeded Wm. Corvehill in 1546.

John Hopkys is the subject of a letter written by John Bayley ex-Prior, immediately after the surrender (Letters and Papers, Hen. VIII., 1540, 112) wherein he describes him as a " poor scholar of Oxford," and asks for a letter empowering anyone whom Hopkys might send, to receive his pension. We imagine him therefore returning to Oxford, and with his £5 : 6 : 8 making shift to continue his studies, till he could be appointed to some cure.

The general impression left by the study of Butler's Register, is that of the dissolved community lingering on, at or near the site of their former home, and eking out their pensions by serving cures

(or before 1547, stipendiary services) in the neighbourhood, of which indeed most of them, if we may judge by the alias they bore, were natives. The Vicar of Wenlock, who is quite obviously a strong sympathizer with the old régime, though compliant enough to conform to each change as it came along, was fortunate in having a large number of chapels, dependent on Wenlock, at his disposal. Bourton, Acton Round, Barrow, Benthall, Monk Hopton and Shipton, all come under this description, while Broseley, Madeley, and Beckbury are not far off, and were all ancient dependencies of Much Wenlock. Sir Thomas Butler would thus be able to put his friends in the way of serving one or other of these, and this is just what he appears to have done.

Though we must deplore the loss of the original Register which was destroyed by a fire at Wynnstay in 1859, we owe a deep debt of gratitude to those who, before that time, made the extracts, which enable us to trace with unusual clearness the fortunes of the monks of Wenlock after the dissolution of their house.

THE FAMILY OF MARSTON, OF AFCOTE, ETC.

By the late EVELYN H. MARTIN.

The four Wills and ten Charters which follow throw fresh light on the history of this family. The Wills were extracted by the Rev. F. A. Homer from the originals preserved at Hereford. The early Charters belong to W. F. Beddoes, Esq., of Minton, and are of course in Latin, but have been translated by the Rev. W. G. D. Fletcher. It should be noted that although the ancient Arms described on page 2 properly belong to this family, yet it has no heraldic right to the crest which was granted to the London branch of the family (see page 15).

I. MARSTON OF AFCOTE.

I. ROBERT OF MARSTON, who heads the pedigree (see page 2), was a considerable landowner at Marston in Lincolnshire, and died c. 1306-7. The King's Writ, addressed to Walter de Gloucester, the Eschaetor beyond the Trent, to enquire what lands were held by Robert de Merston at his death, was dated at Laurecost 24 February 35 Edward I. [1306-7].

The following is a translation of the Inquisition then taken, which has been extracted and translated by the Rev. W. G. D. Fletcher.

Ing. p. m. 35 Edward I., No. 35. C. Edward I. File 131. (7).

MERSTON. Inquisition concerning the lands and tenements which belonged to Robert de Merston in the County of Lincoln, made before the Eschaetor of the lord the King at Marston on the 15th day of March in the thirty fifth year of King Edward, by [the oath of] Elias de Merston, John at the hall of the same, William son of Robert of the same, John Page of the same, Geoffrey Ribodon of the same, Crigin [?] son of Robert of the same, Robert Beneirgr', Alexander de Stubton, Robert de Botellesford, Robert de Rondesoy, Wated Ancastre, Thomas Mackeuitter and Robert Page of the same, sworn. Who say upon their oath that the aforesaid Robert held in his demesue as of his fee on the day on which he died certain lands and certain tenements in Merston written below as the heir of Ralph de Gouxall deceased, which he held of the lord the King in chief, being under age and in the King's custody, by the service of the fourth part of a knight's fee, And rendering yearly to the bailiwick [?] manor] of Roxham, which belonged to the said Ralph, 4s. at the term of Pentecost. And they say that the capital messuage included is worth 15s. for the sustentation of the houses. And there are there 59 acres of arable land, worth per annum 19s. 8d., 4d. for each acre of land ; and 10 acres of meadow, worth per annum 20s., 2s. for each acre. Robert Arnot one messuage and 2 acres of land, and renders yearly 8s. 6d. at the same terms. Elizabeth de fewerker two-thirds of 4 bovates of land, and renders per annum 19s. 4d. at the same terms. Gilbert Sparroue [?] one messuage, and renders yearly 2s. at the same terms. Richard the miller one messuage, and renders yearly 2s. at the same terms. Gugu [?] Bercar' one messuage, and renders yearly 16d. at the same terms. John brice [?] one messuage, and renders yearly 3s. 6d. at the same terms. John de broughtlon one messuage, and half a bovate of land, and renders yearly 6d., namely, at the term of St. Michael 1d. Easter 1d., and Pentecost 4d.

Item den. son of Alan of the lane [ad venellam] one messuage, and renders yearly 2s. 10d. at the same terms.

Sum £4 15s.

And there are there certain Customary tenants, who hold certain lands and certain tenements written below, namely, Richard Weyot holds one messuage and one bovate of land, and renders yearly 8s. 4d. at the four said terms for all services by equal portions. Hanno [?] de Brandon one messuage and one bovate of land, and renders yearly 11s. 4d. at the same terms equally. Robert son of Poo one messuage and one bovate of land; and renders yearly 15s. at (the same) terms equally for all services. Richard son of William son of Robert one messuage and one bovate of land, and renders yearly 15s. in the same manner at the said terms.

Sum 49s. 8d.

The sum of the sums aforesaid of the clear value, rent resolute, as before is inscribed, £7 14s. 4d.

Item, there are there certain Cottagers [Cotarii], of whom William son of Goydo holds one cottage, and renders yearly 5s. at the four terms aforesaid equally. John Geyot one cottage, and renders yearly 4s. at the same terms. Hugh son of Thomas one cottage, and renders 4d. at the terms aforesaid; Hugh son of Matilda one piece [placeam], and renders yearly 2s. as above.

Sum 11s. 4d.

Item, they say that the aforesaid Robert held in his demesue as of fee on the day in which he died 21 acres of arable land there and one acre of meadow of Sir Philip de Lindesey, by what service they are ignorant, and the said land is worth yearly 7s. [four words underlined illegible here], and the said meadow yearly 4s.

Sum 9s.

Item, they say that the aforesaid Robert held in his demesue as of fee on the day in which he died one bovate of land there of the Abbot of Newboth [Newbo], rendering for service 13d. yearly, at the term of St. Dyonisius, and the said land is worth yearly in all its issues 4s. And 2 acres of meadow, and the said acres are worth yearly 4s.

Sum 8s.

Item, they say that the said Robert held as above 1½ acres of meadow of the prior of Haverholm, by the service of 13d. to be paid yearly at the term of St. John, and the meadow aforesaid is worth yearly in all its issues 3s. 6d.

Sum 3s. 6d.

Item, they said that the said Robert held as above a certain Croft there of Payn Tybetoft, by the service of 3s. yearly to be paid at the term of Michaelmas and Easter equally, and it is worth yearly 4s. in all issues.

Sum 4s.

The aforesaid Jurors say also that the aforesaid Robert renders yearly for the aforesaid lands which he holds of the aforesaid heir, a gallon [or flagon, "plagenam"] of oil at the price of 6d. at the chapel of blessed Mary the virgin of Marston at the feast of the nativity of our Lord. And 22d. silver viz. yearly at the terms of St. Michael 3d. the Nativity of our Lord 11d., and Easter 3d. and St. John Baptist 3d. And to Allerdy de Foston half a quarter of [illegible] at the term of the Nativity of our Lord and Easter equally, at the price of 18d. And to the Prior of Malteby 2s. at the same terms.

Sum of rents resolute 5s. 8d.

Also they say that John de Marston is the son of the aforesaid Robert and his next heir, and is aged 1½ year. In witness whereof the said Jurors have set their seals to this Inquisition.

The aforesaid Robert had no other lands or tenements in our bailiwick on the day on which he died, except the lands and tenements contained in this Inquisition.

The Will of Mary Marston of Afcott 1607, (see page 7)—was first proved at Hereford 23 February, 1607 - 8, and later in P. C. C. 9 September, 1608.

The Will of IX. John Marston of Afcott, who died in 1605 (see page 7), is as follows :—

IX. MARSTON OF BISHOPS CASTLE.

(Note:—Bishops Castle is written “B.C.” throughout).

There seem to have been no Marstons resident at Bishops Castle before the year 1725. Between that year and 1750 eight families of the name settled here, but where they came from does not appear. The pedigree which follows is that of the most important of these families.

I. RICHARD MARSTON of Bishops Castle, was buried there 4 March 1753-4. He married at Church Stretton 1 May 1737 Joyce Mullard, widow, of Church Stretton, and by her had issue a son Richard, of whom next. His widow was married secondly by licence at B.C. on 10 May 1754 to Samuel Longwell. His Will is as follows:

Will of Richard Marston of Bishops Castle, Baker, 1754.

To my wife Joyce all those tenements and dwelling houses with appurtenances in Bishops Castle which I now hold by lease under Sir Francis Charlton, Bart. and Corbyn Morris, Esquire, during the remainder of the years to come, if she continue a widow, but if she marry, the half of all the said tenements and dwelling houses to go to, and the rents to be paid to, Richard Williams of Bishops Castle maulster, for the use of my son Richard Marston till he is 21, and thenceforth Richard shall have the half. To my wife all the residue of my goods and personal estate during her widowhood, but if she marry then half shall be paid to the said Richard Williams for the use of my son Richard till 21, or at such time as the said Richard Williams shall think best. My wife and the said Richard Williams to be executrix and executor. Dated 13 January 1754. The mark of Richard Marston.

Witnesses : Jeremiah Griffiths, Samuel Griffiths.

Proved at Ludlow 5 March 1754 by Joyce Marston and Richard Williams.

(Hereford Wills, Register Book XXXIII, fo. 253. Act Book 10, No. 69.)

II. RICHARD MARSTON of Bishops Castle, bapt. there 30 March 1740, died 29 June and there buried 1 July 1799. He married there by licence on 12 June 1761 Elizabeth Baxter of B.C., who was traditionally said to be connected with the Puritan Divine. She was buried there 3 May 1806, aged 76.

Administration of the estate of Richard Marston of B.C. was granted at Hereford 9 April 1800 to his Widow Elizabeth Marston. (Hereford Act Book 14, No. 113.)

[The foregoing pedigree is compiled chiefly from an old family Bible and other records, formerly in the possession of the late Mr. W. H. Marston of Gattertop, and now of Mr. C. V. Marston, and from the Bishops Castle Registers and Tombstones in Bishops Castle Churchyard, and from information kindly supplied by Mr. R. B. Marston of London, Mr. C. B. Marston of Ludlow, and Miss Miriam Marston. An autobiographical book by Mr. Edward Marston, entitled After Work, contains a good deal of information about this family].

It is difficult accurately to connect the various families of Marston which follow. The baptisms and burials all took place at Bishops Castle, unless otherwise stated. It is deemed better simply to name the families, without making any attempt to connect them. The entries were mostly supplied to Mrs. Martin by the Rev. C. E. Warner, Vicar of Bishops Castle, free of fees ; and they have been checked with a transcript of the Registers made by the Rev. F. C. Norton for the Shropshire Parish Register Society.—ED.

THE LATE REV. CHARLES HENRY DRINKWATER.

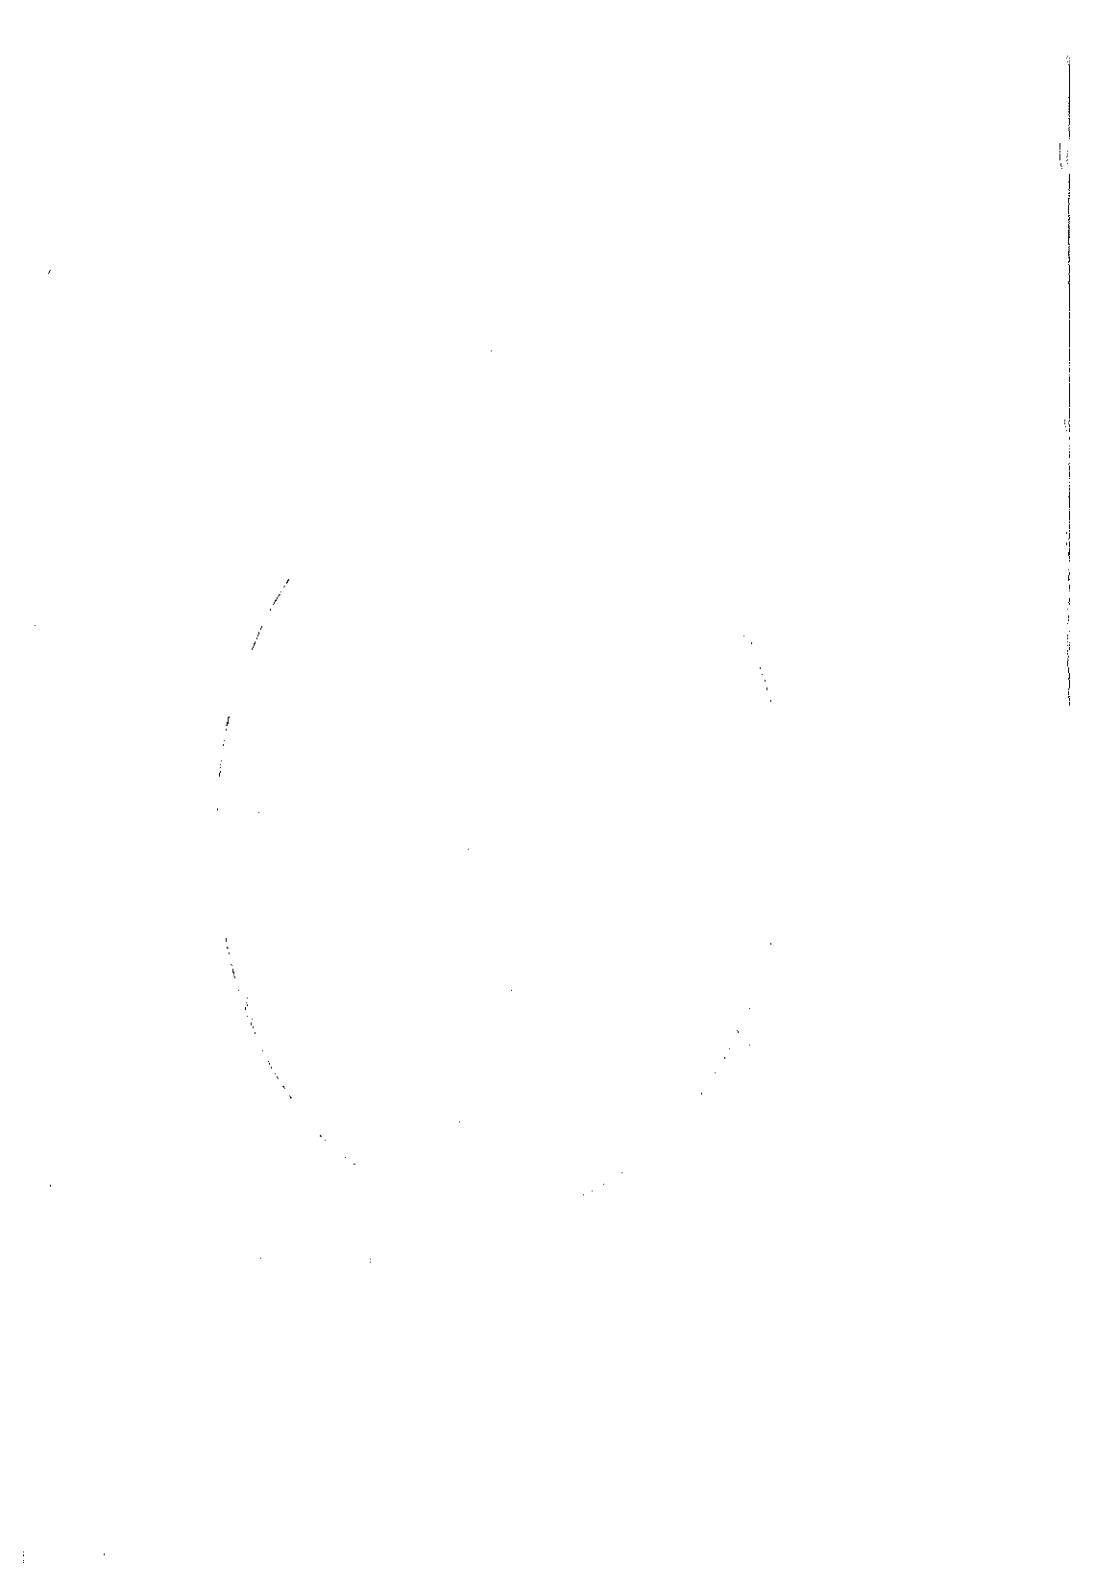

The Shropshire Archaeological and Natural History Society has sustained a great loss by the death of the Rev. Charles Henry Drinkwater, at the great age of 92. He was one of the original members of the Society in 1877, a member of the Council and of the Editorial Committee, and a constant contributor of valuable papers to its Transactions. He was a most diligent and pains-taking antiquary, and had carefully transcribed large numbers of early Charters and records, many of which have been printed in the Transactions. His most important work is probably his transcript of all the existing Gild Merchant Rolls of Shrewsbury from the reign of King John to that of Henry VII. To him is due the discovery of the Inner Wall of Shrewsbury, an account of which is given in the 1883 Volume. His faculties were unimpaired almost to the last, and he contributed to our Volumes when he was nearly ninety!

The following is a list of his papers which have been printed in our Transactions, with a reference to the Volume in which they appear:—

- The Inner Wall of Shrewsbury. (VI., 257.)
- Mainstone and Offa's Dyke. (VII., 127.)
- The Parish of Habberley. (VIII., 187.)

 Deed relating to property belonging to the Hospital of St. John the Baptist, Shrewsbury, 1610. (4 S. VIII., 67.)
 He also contributed ten short notes or papers to the " Miscellanea " of our Transactions.

He was a constant contributor to Bye-Gones, Salopian Shreds and Patches, and Shropshire Notes and Queries, under his own initials or the noms-de-plume of " Boileau," " Yfed Dwfr," " Henry Trader, Chirk N. Wales," &c.

RICHARD DRINKWATER,
MAYOR OF SHREWSBURY 1834-5.

In his earlier years in Shrewsbury he used to take a weekly excursion, with the Rev. W. Allport Leighton, or some other antiquarian friend, to outlying villages, and make notes of the churches, old houses, &c., visited, and send them to one or other of these local columns.

To the Shropshire volume of the Victoria County Histories he contributed a translation of the Shropshire portion of Domesday, and to a work by Dr. W. Cunningham, of Cambridge, entitled "Modern Civilization in its Economic Aspects," 1896, a copy of the Shrewsbury Merchant Gild Rolls 1209 to 1220. In collaboration with the Rev. W. G. D. Fletcher he published in 1920 a history of "The Family of Drinkwater." But we believe that no separate independent book fell from his pen.

Mr. Drinkwater copied for the Shropshire Parish Register Society the earliest volumes of the Registers of Wroxeter, Worthen and Berrington.

He also transcribed the Court Books of the Manors of Condover and Pontesbury, which have never yet been printed, but his transcripts of these in 9 volumes together with other MSS. will be deposited in the Shrewsbury Public Free Library; and a large number of early deeds and charters relating to various places in Shropshire. He was a most indefatigable and industrious transcriber of early records, and his great knowledge of early handwritings stood him in good stead.

He contributed several papers to the Cambrian Archaeological Association's Proceedings, and one to the Palestine Exploration Fund's Quarterly Statement. He was local Secretary of the latter Society.

Charles Henry Drinkwater was born in Frankwell in the house, afterwards St. George's Vicarage, which was then the property of his father, on 8 April, 1831. He was the fifth son of Mr. Richard Drinkwater, a woolstapler of Frankwell, who served the office of Mayor of Shrewsbury in 1834-5, by his wife Elizabeth, daughter of John Clarke of Wroxeter and Elizabeth his wife, daughter of Andrew Dawes of Berrington. The Drinkwaters had been resident at Bent in the parish of Warburton, Cheshire, for many generations. As early as 1500 they were living there. They were leaseholders for lives, renewable on payment of a fine, under the Warburtons of Arley who owned the freehold. Their house at Bent, still standing is a half-timbered house, built by Richard Drinkwater in 1600, and restored in 1880. There are a number of tombstones to the family in Warburton Church and Churchyard, dating from 1624, and the Font in the Church bears the Inscription :—

WILLIAM DRINKWATER THE KEEPER. 1603.

The father of the Mayor, Richard Drinkwater a second son, left Bent about 1780, and moved to the Home Farm, Hodnet, and afterwards to Shrewsbury where he became a woolstapler; he married Jane Pratchett and died in 1825. The Mayor was sworn and admitted a burgess of Shrewsbury in 1806, and died in 1853. On the north wall of the nave of St. Chad's there is a monument to his memory.

Mr. Drinkwater was educated at Shrewsbury School under Dr. Kennedy, and, having obtained a School scholarship, went to St. John's College, Cambridge, of which he also became an exhibitioner, and took his B.A. Degree in 1853. Whilst still an under-graduate, and only twenty years of age, he married at St. Martin's-in-the-fields, London, on 20 June, 1851, Emilie Girley, daughter of Charles Mottron, his wife being then only seventeen. When he had taken his degree, he migrated to Canada, and became a tutor at Trinity College, Toronto, of which he became M.A., in 1865. In 1856, he was ordained Deacon, and two years later Priest, by the Bishop of Toronto, and was appointed rector of St. Thomas' Hamilton, and Inspector of Schools. Here he remained until 1868, when he returned to England, and for four years held curacies successively at Ixworth, Suffolk; Richmond, Yorkshire; and St. Stephen's, Exeter. In 1872 he was appointed Incumbent of St. George's, Shrewsbury, and remained in this post until his death. He was also Chaplain of the Shrewsbury Depot of the 53rd K.S.L.I. He passed away, after a brief illness, on 5 June, 1923, dying in the same house in which he was born, and in which he had resided for 51 years, and was buried on the 8th at the General Cemetery, Shrewsbury, in the same grave with his wife. She preceded him, and died leaving no children on 19 April, 1907, after some years of semi-invalid life, during which he showed himself a most devoted husband.

Two years before his death, he retired from active parochial work, but by an arrangement with the Bishop he resided in the Vicarage and remained Vicar until the end. He was sworn a burgess of Shrewsbury on 30 July, 1873 and was a Trustee of St. Chad's Charities. During his Incumbency he built new Schools in the parish. He was a thoughtful preacher, and an excellent reader. He was also an active Freemason. Somewhat brusque in manner, he had a most kindly disposition, and was ever a true and warm-hearted friend. Younger archaeologists always found him most kind and helpful and ready to impart his stores of knowledge.

Biographical notices of Mr. Drinkwater were given in Mate's "Shropshire Historical Descriptive, Biographical," Part II., page 82, and in the Guardian, The Record, and all the local papers published after his death. A full account of the family will be found in Burke's Commoners, Vol. IV., page 668, in Burke's Landed Gentry, 2nd edition, page 358, and in the work already mentioned—“The Family of Drinkwater, of Cheshire, Lancashire, The Isle of Man, &c.,” 1920.

The portraits here reproduced are from blocks prepared for the last-named work. Some years ago, Mr. W. K. Carter of The Mount, Shrewsbury, painted a large portrait in oils of Mr. Drinkwater: this now hangs in the family residence at the “Geufron,” Llangollen. His large archaeological library was dispersed at his death, but his collection of bronze implements, swords and other antiquities passed to his nephews, the sons of his brother Dr. James Pratchett Drinkwater, late of Llangollen.

The descent of the Drinkwaters of Shrewsbury from the family seated at Bent is as follows:—

I. Richard Drinkwater was living at Warburton in 1587. His son

II. Arnold Drinkwater of Bent, died 1620, married Jane Gleave of Heatley, and had a son

III. Richard Drinkwater of Bent, born 1563, died 8 Oct., 1651 married in 1614 Margaret Frith of Dunham. Their son

IV. Arnold Drinkwater of Bent, born 14 Sept., 1618, buried 12 Sept., 1671, married Elizabeth Powell of Ruabon, and had issue

V. Richard Drinkwater of Bent, bapt. 25 Jan., 1648, died 30 May 1729, married 29 Dec., 1666 Isabel dau. of Peter Drinkwater of Massey Green in Thelwall. Their second son

VI. Arnold Drinkwater of Bent, born August 1679, died 10 Jan., 1755, married in 1706 Margaret dau. of John Coppock of Ringway. Their second son

VII. Richard Drinkwater of Bent, born 19 Dec., 1718, died 10 Oct., 1754, married Elizabeth, dau. of John Chantler of Mollington, and had two sons,—Arnold who moved to Shrewsbury (born 1750, died 1819), and

VIII. Richard Drinkwater of Hodnet and afterwards of Shrewsbury, woolstapler, born 19 Feb., 1755, died 4 March 1825, married 16 July, 1780, Jane, dau. of Richard Pratchett of Hodnet. Their second son

IX. Richard Drinkwater of Frankwell, Mayor of Shrewsbury, 1834-5, born 19 April 1785, died 30 May, 1853, married 12 Oct., 1815, Elizabeth, dau. of John Clarke of Wroxeter, and had issue 6 sons and 4 daus. The fifth son was

X. Charles Henry Drinkwater, the subject of this memoir.

XXXVI. WORTHEN HALL.

Worthen Hall and Hampton Hall were both seats of the Powell family of Worthen. Of the two, Worthen Hall is the older. It was built late in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, by Richard Powell, an opulent mercer of Shrewsbury, an alderman of that Corporation and bailiff 1573 and 1591. Taking in his bill as tradition relates, to Edward, Lord Stafford, the peer declared his inability to discharge it; but added, "You are welcome, if you like, to take yonder morass in exchange," pointing to Worthen on which he looked down from the stately height of Caus Castle. Mr. Powell wisely accepted the proposal, drained and improved the land, and laid the foundation of a family which subsisted in opulence and credit for five generations. Lord Stafford sold the fee simple of the Manor of Worthen to Richard Powell in 1571-2.

Worthen Hall was probably the first house which Richard Powell erected on the land which he had acquired here. The building is now a farm house, and, at first sight presents little of interest because it is entirely concealed by a coating of stucco. Closer examination, however, reveals the fact that it is a timber-framed structure of late Elizabethan period, dating probably from about 1590. It is L-shaped in plan, and of two storeys with attics in the roof. The upper storey overhangs along the front. Inside, the ceiling beams present deeply chamfered edges. There are three chimney stacks, the bases of stone, the shafts of bricks. The frame panels appear to be square and of moderate size. They are now filled with bricks, but these are modern and no doubt they were originally filled with wattle and daub. The sides of the attics are lined with Elizabethan oak paneling: most of this has been painted all over with outline ornamentation in dull red, the design quite indescribable. It is evidently old, though it would be difficult to assign any date to it, except to say that it was applied after the paneling had been fitted into the attics. The house as a whole has undergone little alteration since it was built, except at the eastern end. This has been lengthened by removing the original timber frame, and building a brick wall a few feet further out. There have also been one or two minor additions in brick in modern times, while the whole has been covered with a mask of plaster. This might well be removed so as to show the timber frame.

Before going on to give the family history of the Powells it may be well to give some account of their other seat—

XXXVI. A. HAMPTON HALL, WORTHEN.

This house occupies an elevated position on a northern slope overlooking the Rea Valley. It is entirely of brick and, as first built, was a simple rectangular house with projecting wings in front at either end. On the front of the western wing may be read in the brickwork the initials H.P. and date 1686. The floor levels are outlined by a projecting string course of bricks, as is usual in houses of this period. A curious and puzzling feature is that the basement wall of the western wing is a foot thicker than the superstructure. The projecting top of the former is roofed with slate where the latter commences. The whole of this end of the house is constructed of rather thin bricks, which look older than the date inscribed above. It is possible that the bricks belonged to an earlier building, and have been re-used. Some of the roof-timbers of an adjoining barn have also evidently been re-used. The fireplaces are square and have a simple moulded surround without mantel shelf. These are contemporaneous with the main building, as also, probably, is one of the smaller stair-cases.

There are extensive cellars, and these show that the foundations and basement walls were of local stone—not brick. Here, too, is a stone inscribed :

H—P,
I—F.

The lower initials stand for Johannis filius, and indicate that Henry Powell, son of John, commenced building in 1681, while the figures on the west front tell us that he finished the house in 1686. The stone in the cellar is obliquely truncate, so is probably not in situ. Who this Henry Powell was may be seen by reference to the family history below.

Such was Hampton Hall from the time of Charles II. till the middle of the 18th century, when considerable additions were made which entirely altered its appearance both inside and out. An imposing stone porch was added over the main entrance, surmounted by a stone shield bearing the arms of Herbert of Cherbury and the date 1749. A plain brick parapet was built along the top, concealing the roof and giving a straight sky-line. At the rear, facing the main entrance, a large bay was built to accommodate a fine Georgian staircase of unusual width, similar to the one in the Abbey House, Shrewsbury. Although now partitioned off, the whole space between the front door and the staircase then formed one large hall. The stairs dado has disappeared, but several of the rooms have the dado and large bevelled panels, reaching to the cornice, characteristic of the 18th century. At the S.E. corner a quaint little semi-circular bay was added, above which is carved in stone an eagle. The windows here, and in several other places, have the small panes and thick moulded sash bars of the early Georgian period.

The introduction to the printed parish register of Worthen states that Hampton Hall was bought by Captain Herbert, in 1749—the date inscribed on the porch beneath the sculptured Herbert arms. The same coat of arms with a crescent for difference and surmounted by a crest—a sheaf of arrows—is carved on the pew-door next the pulpit in Worthen Church. The crest is that of the Herberts of Chirbury—not the Herberts, Earls of Powis, who bear a Wyvern for crest. The Captain Herbert who bought Hampton Hall, and made the above extensive alterations and additions, was Edward Herbert a younger son of Thomas, 8th Earl of Pembroke and 5th Earl of Montgomery. (Another son was William Herbert, father of the 1st Earl of Carnarvon, ancestor of the later Earls of Carnarvon, who bear the same arms and crest). Edward Herbert died unmarried in 1752, only three years after purchasing Hampton Hall, so that he did not live to enjoy the fruit of his lavish expenditure on improvements, or to transmit the same to his posterity. After his death Hampton Hall appears to have passed by purchase to yeoman farmers named Edwards and Jones successively.

In 1851, Sir John R. Kynaston, Bart., was one of the two land owners of the township of Hayes, in which Hampton Hall stands; and the trustees of the late John Edwards, Esq., represented the other. Samuel Jones, farmer, was living at Hampton Hall and John Corfield, farmer, at the Hayes, the only other house in the township. About 1860, Hampton Hall was purchased by Capt. Whitaker, who in 1920 sold it to the present occupier Major T. H. Montgomery.

POWELLS OF WORTHEN.

HOWELL, son of Ithell of Henllan, Co. Denbigh, married Elizabeth, daughter of Madock Lloyd of Llanfair in Dyffryn Clwyd, and had a son

ALEXANDER AP HOWELL, who married Alice, daughter of Robert Salusbury of Rûg, Co. Merioneth. Their son

HOWELL AP SANDER married Margaret, daughter of Robert Ireland, of Shrewsbury, and had a son

JOHN AP HOWELL, a glover in Abbey Foregate, who married Margaret, daughter of William Webb of Co. Wilts. They had two sons, Thomas and Richard. The younger of these RICHARD POWELL I., who acquired the Worthen Estate from Lord Stafford, of Caus Castle, and was Sheriff in 1594 (Morris gives his son, Richard, as the Sheriff), had an elder brother, Thomas, who was ancestor of the Powells of Pulley, burgesses of Shrewsbury. They came down in the world, the later generations being labourers. Richard Powell I. married Alice, daughter of William Lee, of Co. Chester, by his wife, Lowry, daughter Fulke Spurstowe. He had three daughters and three sons. The eldest, Robert, died young. The second, Richard (II.), succeeded his father at Worthen, while the third, John, was of All Stretton. We must deal with both these gentlemen separately.

RICHARD POWELL II., succeeded to the Worthen Estate. He was buried at Worthen, 10th July, 1626. By his wife, Winifred Poyner, of Beslow, he had a daughter, Mary, married to Edmund Jones, Welshpool, and a son, RICHARD POWELL III., who in turn succeeded to the estate. He was buried at Worthen, 8th May, 1636. He was twice married. First to Sarah, daughter of Francis Newton, of Heightley near Bishop's Castle, by whom he had five daughters, three of whom died infants. The eldest, Margaret, married Edward Bradley, of Hockstow, gentleman, while the second, Sarah, married Alexander Middleton, of Middleton Hall, Chirbury. Richard Powell married secondly at Childs Ercall, 24th February, 1619, Elizabeth, daughter of Richard Corbett, of Stoke-on-Tern, by whom he had two sons—Richard and Andrew—both of whom died infants; and five daughters—Ann, Mary, Isabella, Abigail, and Muriel. Of these five, Mary (born 1623), married Thomas Hawkes, of Botfield, or Botvyle, near Church Stretton; Isabella (1625), married Rowland Middleton, of Salop, mercer, brother of the above Alexander Middleton; Abigail (1626), died an infant; Muriel (1628), married John Williams, of Meifod, son of Limley Williams; he died 1685, and she 1703, both being buried at Meifod. The eldest daughter, Ann, married her cousin, Henry Powell—see below.

We now return to

JOHN POWELL I., younger brother of Richard Powell II. He was of All Stretton, and married Elizabeth, daughter and heiress of Richard Higgons, of Shrewsbury. John died 1622, and his widow married Arthur Ward, of Hinton, in the parish of Pontesbury. There were five sons and two daughters. The eldest, Higgons Powell (born 1605), was sworn a burgess of Shrewsbury, 1628, but seems to have died without issue. The second, Thomas Powell, gentleman, of the Manor House, All Stretton, buried at Church Stretton, 1670, left a son

THOMAS POWELL II., who was tenant of the Hall, (near the old Rectory), Church Stretton, under Sir George Norton; he was buried at Stretton, 19th March, 1682, and was succeeded by his son Richard, and he by his son, John, 1685-1755, last of the Stretton Powells. The third son of John Powell I. was

HENRY POWELL I., who by his marriage with his cousin, Ann Powell—mentioned above—succeeded to the Worthen estate and built Hampton Hall. He had seven sons and two daughters, but several of these died infants, and the only two which need be mentioned are John (born 1640), and Henry (1648). This

HENRY POWELL II., succeeded his father at Hampton Hall, and died there in April, 1708. By his wife, Anna, he had an only child, Elizabeth, born 9th May, 1683. She appears to have married..... Newton, and in 1749 sold Hampton Hall to Edward Herbert as related above.

To revert now to the elder son of Henry Powell I.,

JOHN POWELL II. He was born at Worthen, 3rd June, 1640, and buried there, 5th December, 1727, his wife, Ann being laid with him on the same day. He was Sheriff of Shropshire in 1698. He had two daughters—Anne (born 1668), and Dorothy (1671), who married Brochwel Wynne, of Garth, Welshpool—and three sons—Henry (1674), John (1677), and Richard (1683). The eldest son

HENRY POWELL III., was born at Worthen, 25th June, 1674, and buried there 12th November, 1731. He lived first at Brockton, and afterwards at Worthen. He was thrice married, and had issue by each wife. First, Eleanor, daughter of Edward Kerry, of Bin Weston, whom he married 12th May, 1695 and who died March, 1704; she had a daughter, Ann, 1696, and a son, Edward, 1703-1722. The second wife, Martha died July, 1721, leaving a son, JOHN III., of whom more anon—and a daughter, Martha, 1707-1780. The third wife, Margaret, daughter of Nathaniel Baskerville, of Shrewsbury, gentleman, was married at St. Chad's, 1727. She had a daughter, Mary, who, on 13th April, 1752, married at St. Chad's, Roger Knyaston, of Hordley. Their eldest son, JOHN KYNASTON, afterwards succeeded to the Worthen estates, in manner following.

JOHN POWELL III. (son of Henry Powell III.) mentioned above, was born at Worthen in July, 1709. He was Sheriff of Shropshire in 1737, and died in Shrewsbury—where he lived the latter part of his life—8th January, 1797. Being unmarried, he bequeathed the Worthen estates to his half-sister, Mary Kynaston's, son

JOHN KYNASTON, who assumed in 1797 (in accordance with the injunction of his kinsman John Powell) the surname and arms of Powell. He represented Shropshire in Parliament for 38 years, and in 1800 preferred—unsuccessfully—a claim to the barony of Powis, his ancestor Edward Kynaston having been found by inquisition in 1556, "cousin and heir of Edward, last Lord Powis." He was, however, in consideration of the said ancient and noble family, advanced to a baronetcy in 1818, with special remainder to his brother, Rev. Edward Kynaston. Sir John married Mary Elizabeth, sister to John Corbet of Sundorn, and died without issue in 1822. He was succeeded by the said brother, the Rev.

EDWARD KYNASTON, second baronet, who married in 1783, Letitia, daughter of Robert Owen, of the city of Dublin. He had a son and two daughters. The son JOHN ROGER KYNASTON, third baronet, was one of the principal land owners in Worthen in 1851. He died unmarried and intestate in 1866; whereupon the title became extinct and his estates devolved upon his surviving sister.

AMY, who then became of Hardwicke. She had married the Rev. Evelyn Sutton. He predeceased her in 1835, leaving no issue, and she, dying in 1868, devised the estates to the descendant of her maternal grandfather Robert Owen (mentioned above), the Rev.

WALTER CHARLES EDWARD KYNASTON OWEN, of Hardwick, who thereupon assumed by royal license the name and arms of Kynaston only. He died in 1903 and was succeeded by his only son

WALTER ROGER OWEN KYNASTON, the present owner of Hardwicke.

XXXVII. NEWNHAM.

This is a small manor house in the parish of Pontesbury, but situated near Yockleton Station. In early times Newnham and Boycott both belonged to the Higgons family, and both passed to the Niccols family, probably by marriage, although the former have continued in the district down to recent times. The last Higgons to reside at Newnham seems to have been "Richard Higgons, Senior, of Newnham," buried at Pontesbury 17th Jan., 1639. Of the Higgons house nothing remains. The present one being faced with stucco does not look at all old, but if the ends and rear are examined it will be found that the main building dates from the latter half of the 17th century, whilst additions were made at the rear in the early part of the following century. The original house was rectangular in plan, of three storeys, and presented a stone-coped gable at each end. The whole was of 17th century brick, and the floor-levels outlined by projecting strings as usual at this date. In each gable there are two oval openings, which were doubtless windows, but subsequently blocked up to avoid paying window tax. The large double doors giving access to the yard are of similar date. It is interesting to note that when additional buildings were erected at the rear in 1723, the builder continued the string-courses all round the house, although by that time this feature had become old fashioned. The same remark applies to the billet moulding at the eaves. This might give the erroneous impression that the house was all of 17th century date. There are extensive cellars beneath the older building, and here timbers from an earlier house have been re-used, while the ceiling beams are chamfered. In the living rooms all the beams have been cased so that they appear to be square. The decorations and bay windows are modern, as also is the porch. In the kitchen is a wide ingle, formerly containing an open fireplace, but now filled by a range. Near the house is a square brick dovecote of two storeys, the upper fitted with nestholes for pigeons, the lower without nestholes. The latter has a fireplace—a most unusual feature. This belongs to the later period, so was erected by John Niccols II. A range of stabling to the rear of the yard inscribed was built by Robert and Elinor Niccols.

The Niccols family appear to have been connected with the parish of Pontesbury at least as far back as the 16th century.

THOMAS NICCOLLS (I.) yeoman, of Asterley, was admitted to the Mercer's Co. in 1570, the Draper's Co. 1588, and burgess 1590. He is believed to have lived in Blake Hall on the site of the present St. Chad's Vicarage. He had a son

JOHN NICCOLLS (I.) a draper of Shrewsbury, who was alderman 1616; bailiff 1608; and died 1622. He married in 1593 Anne, daughter of Rowland Heylyn, alderman of London, and promoter of the translation of the Bible into Welsh. Their son, THOMAS NICCOLLS (II.) (1596-1662), of Boycott, was a man of considerable note. He was bailiff of Shrewsbury, 1636, sheriff of Shropshire 1645, and Mayor of Shrewsbury, 1645. It will be noticed that the two last offices cover the period of the Civil War. Owing probably to the influence of his mother, Thomas Niccols came out as an uncompromising Puritan.

so sided with the Parliament in the Civil War. A pamphlet printed 12th Oct., 1642, written whilst Charles was at Shrewsbury, to exasperate the citizens against him, says:—"I concieve it great pity His Majesty should be brought into any straights. God reward them that have been the occasion of it! But this I am sure of, he is much abused by his plundering Cavaliers, who daily plunder and undoe men, and say they have commission for it. They have plundered Master Nicchols house, who is sheriff of Montgomery, and burned his writings, spoiled his house, and sold his furnace and the iron of his carts. It is much doubted these passages and other the like, will withdraw the affections of his Majesties subjects from him" The disaffection of Thomas Nicolls was so obvious that upon quitting Shrewsbury in October, 1642, the King addressed a letter to the Mayor and Corporation ordering the arrest of Thomas Nicolls, Humphrey Mackworth, and Thomas Hunt. They absented themselves from the meetings of the Council, and on Nov. 16th they were "displaced for non-residence." The Parliament rewarded Nicolls' services by appointing him Mayor in 1645, when they had captured Shrewsbury. His wife (whom he married 6th December, 1626) was Mary, daughter of John Kynaston, of Marton, and sister of Judith, wife of Sir Orlando Bridgeman, Lord Keeper of the Great Seal. They had 4 sons and 4 daughters. The eldest son,

ROWLAND NICCOLLS (1631-1687), of Boycott, was so named after the above Rowland Heylyn. He was admitted Gray's Inn 1648, and was Sheriff of Shropshire 1675. He was buried at Kinlet 5th July, 1687, where he was staying with the Vicar, Rev. Thomas Bird, who had married his fourth daughter, Felicia, in 1684. He was further connected with Kinlet through having married as his second wife, Anne, widow of Sir William Childe, daughter of Roland Lacon of Kinlet. By his first wife Anne, daughter of Ralph Sneyd, of Keele, Staffordshire, he had seven daughters and four sons. The second daughter, Mary, married John Congreve, of Stretton, Co. Stafford, uncle of the dramatist. Another daughter, Margaret, married John Heynes, of Netley. The sons were Richard, Thomas, Ralph, and Orlando. The last-named was so called after his uncle, the Privy Seal; he married Mary Herbert, of Cleobury Mortimer, and had issue. The youngest son,

RICHARD NICCOLLS, was of Newnham, in right of his wife, Amy Dennis, sister of Lady Glenorchy. He built the older portion of the house at Newnham, and was living there in 1702; he was married in 1671 at Pontesbury: the marriage is also entered at Cardiston. His son and successor,

JOHN NICCOLLS (II.), was baptized at Pontesbury 1687. He married Martha Phillips of Cruck Meole, and it was he that enlarged the house at Newnham, as indicated by a tablet on the side of the building inscribed

(Parenthetically it may be mentioned that EDWARD NICCOLLS, brother of John, was admitted burgess of Shrewsbury in 1702, when he is described as a glazier, and son of Richard of Newnham, yeoman. Edward's son Edward admitted burgess in 1750, is described as of Yockleton Park, glazier. Four of his sons were sworn burgesses. The youngest of these, Thomas, was a yeoman of Boreatton, but his son also Thomas, sworn 1838 is described as of Yockleton Hall, gent.) To return now to John and Martha Nicolls. They had two sons and four daughters. The third daughter Amy (1717-59) married at the Abbey in 1742, Thomas Ireland of Albrighton. The youngest, Catherine (1720-69) married Vincent Corbet of Newton—which see. The surviving son, ROBERT NICCOLLS (I.) (1715-87), married Elinor Barker (1712-91) and had 3 sons and 1 daughter. It was they who made the additions to the buildings at Newnham mentioned above. The eldest son, ROBERT II., died unmarried, so Newnham devolved on the second son,

JOHN NICCOLLS (III.), of Newnham, who married Anne, only child and heir of Rev. David Owen, vicar of Ruyton. They had 4 sons and 3 daughters. The elder son,

JOHN NICCOLLS (IV.) (1789-1850), succeeded to Newnham, where he died unmarried 27th Dec., 1850. His younger brother, WILLIAM OWEN NICCOLLS was of Hanwood, but when sworn a burgess in 1829 is described as Wine Merchant of Mardol. He married Eliza, daughter of John Maxon, whose wife Elizabeth (née Cooke) was cousin of Archdeacon Bather of Meole. The only son, WILLIAM HENRY NICCOLLS succeeded to Newnham on the death of his uncle John Niccolls IV. He was admitted burgess in 1863, at which date he had issue John Henry, aged 6, Dennys Rogers, 5; William Owen Strangward, 4; Lucy Ellen, 3; Walter, 1; Alfred Edward (inf.) Another son Rowland was born later. He went to New Zealand, where he died not many years ago, but Newnham remained in the family until 1922 when it was sold by the above named John Henry Niccolls. Arms of Niccolls—Sable a pheon argent, point downwards. Crest a martlet. Motto, Dum spiro spero.

XXXVIII. LOWER NEWTON.

Situated in the parish of Yockleton, near Stony Stretton, was the seat of the Corbets, of Newton. It is an exceedingly quaint and irregular building standing within a square moat, and is mainly of stone, though it has brick chimneys. So individual is it in character that it is by no means easy to date the structure. In the main it appears to be Elizabethan, but the right-hand wing, which presents its gable end to the front, is somewhat later—about 1620. The lower rooms are wainscotted, the panelling in the Hall (now the kitchen) being Elizabethan; while that in the room to the right is Jacobean, and has a characteristic frieze with finger mouldings. Although not made to fit the rooms, the panelling in each case belongs to the periods of the respective portions of the house. The kitchen fireplace is very wide, and the chimney stack outside is of small Elizabethan bricks, with wide mortar-joints. A short flight of steps leading to the attics is of solid oak blocks, triangular in section, and pegged to sloping runners. It is like the one in a similar position in the Abbot's House, in Butcher Row, Shrewsbury. Near by is a small square dovecote of Jacobean brick. Lower Newton is said to have once been known as Brough Castle, and there was probably a house here from very early times. The Corbets of Newton are a junior branch of the Corbets of Leigh, near Worthen.

PETER CORBET of Leigh had by his wife Elizabeth, daughter of Sir William Brereton, Co. Chester, a son,

JOHN CORBET, of Newton. He was doubtless the builder of the older part of the moated house, about 1550. He married Anna Belgrave, of Belgrave, Co. Leicester, and had a son, HENRY CORBET, of Newton, who had by his wife, Amicia, daughter of Thos. Clough, six sons and three daughters, one son, EDWARD CORBET, of Newton, was living here in 1598 and 1623.

It was he, probably, who added the Jacobean wing to his grandfather's building. By his wife, Anna, daughter of William Jenyns, of Yorton, (buried 1660 at Westbury), he had 5 daughters and one son,

RICHARD CORBET, who married Eleanor, daughter of Richard Furber, of Co. Chester, yeoman. "Elinor Corbet, of Newton, widow," was buried at Westbury, 4th Nov., 1670. Their eldest son,

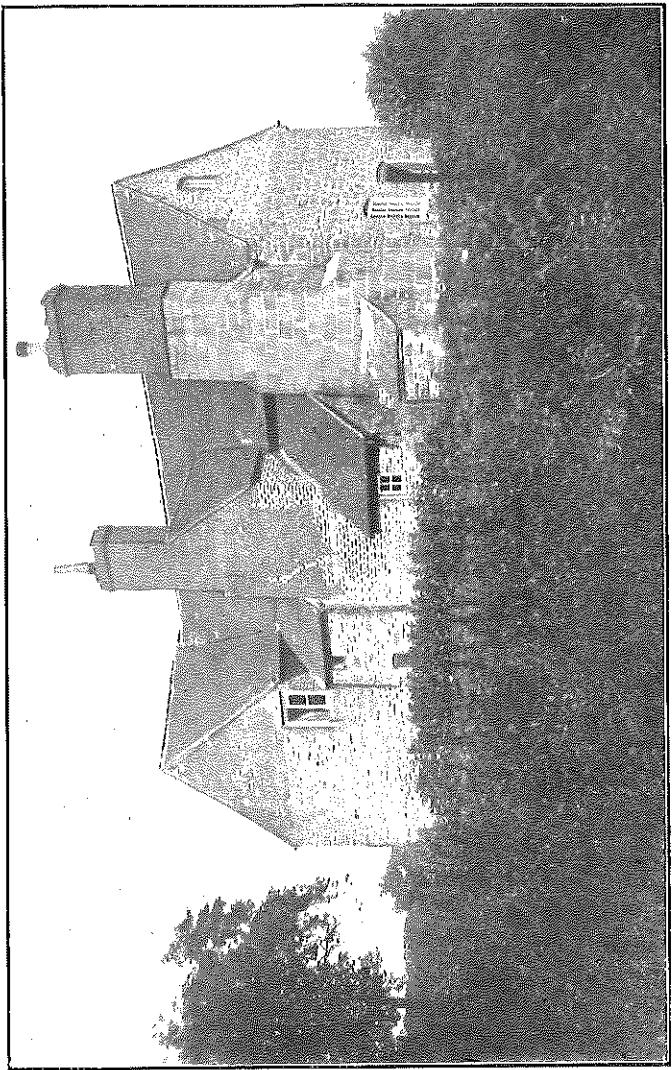

VINCENT CORBET I., of Newton, gentleman, was buried at Westbury in 1713. He had by his wife, Martha, several sons and daughters. The eldest son,

VINCENT CORBET II., born January, 1688, was admitted burgess of Shrewsbury, 1721, his younger brother, EDWARD CORBET, of Minsterley, (born 1691), being admitted the same year. Both are described as "gentlemen." Vincent had a son,

VINCENT CORBET III., of Newton, (born 1715), admitted burgess 1770, buried 1795. By his wife, Catherine Niccols, of Newnham he had three sons—Vincent, John, and Richard. Vincent and John were baptized together at Westbury, 28th Jan., 1755 (though the register does not state that they were twins) Richard 24th Oct., 1761. The two former were also admitted burgesses together 16th Jan., 1787; Richard 6th June, 1796, he being described as "late of Bridgnorth, now Kilm Lane."

VINCENT CORBET IV., of Newton, had by his wife, Margaret, two daughters—Margaret, baptized at Westbury, 24th Nov., 1799, and Catherine, at Minsterley, 14th Sept., 1803—but no son. His brother, the above named JOHN CORBET, had a son, Richard Sprott Corbet, admitted burgess 3rd June, 1796, when he is described as "late of Little Hereford, but now of High Street, clerk."

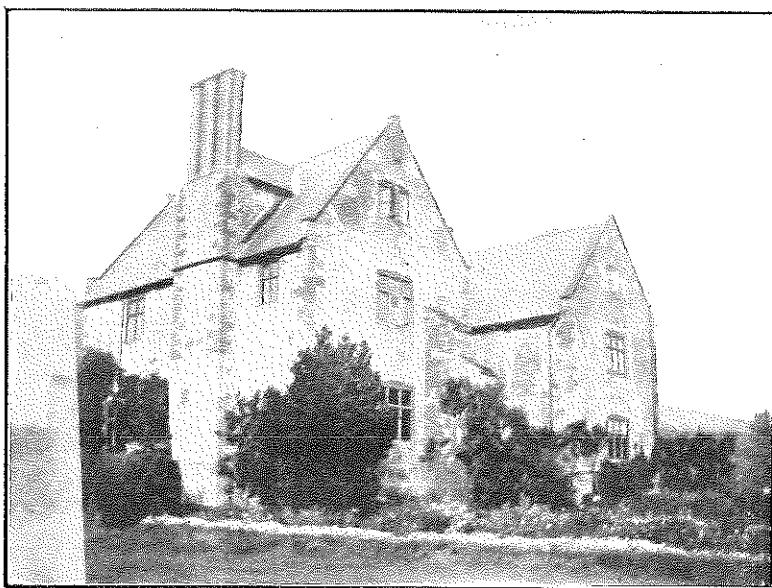

In 1851, John Corbet Jones, Esq., was the sole landowner of Newton, though whether he came into possession by purchase or inheritance does not appear.

This illustrates the method of filling narrow panels in timber frames: by wedging pieces of lath between grooves in the sides of the timbers. The plaster has fallen from two of the panels, exposing the laths.

XXXIX. LEA HALL.

This fine Elizabethan Mansion is situated on high ground on the Ellesmere Road just N. of Preston Gobalds, and in that parish. It was anciently called Reyner's Lee, from Reyner de Lee who held it under Lilleshall Abbey in 1196. Later it was called Lee in Pimhill. The present house was built on the site of an older one by Richard Lee in 1581. The family history is given below. The building is mainly of brick with stone facings and basement. It is E-shaped in plan but without the central projecting porch now: it is doubtful if it ever had one. All the windows were of stone, and closely resembled those of Braggington Hall, but nearly all have been blocked up and replaced by modern windows, most of them in different positions from the original ones. The house has its back to the road and faces eastwards. Against the front of the southern wing is an immense buttress of red sandstone. Why it was erected is a mystery, as there is no visible sign of this wall having given way at all. On every hand are to be seen traces of extensive alterations in the structure, particularly as to the positions of doors and windows, so that it is difficult to say exactly what the house was like when first built. A slightly projecting plinth runs all round the building at the top of the basement. There are extensive cellars, one of which is said to have been used as a cockpit. The interior of the house is chiefly notable for its paneling. That in the drawing room is particularly fine. It has a frieze all round the top, and a beautiful fireplace with overmantle in the outer panels of which are inscribed indicating that the house was built in that year by Richard Lee and Eleanor his wife. The carving and details however are distinctly Jacobean, and therefore of later date. I have no doubt that this woodwork was added to the house by the builders' son, Sir Humphrey Lee, who also erected the Jacobean monument to his father in Acton Burnell Church. One of the upstairs bedrooms is also paneled, but the fireplace although very good work is modern: the stone fireplace itself is Elizabethan. The stone jambs of the big kitchen fireplace are original but the head is of later date. One of the upper rooms has the words "Cheese Room" painted on the door: this is a relic of the days of Window Tax, the window of a Cheese Room, if so marked, being exempt from tax. Near the Hall is a contemporary two-storeyed barn, and a very perfect octagonal brick dove-cote with cupola top, and still retaining the revolving ladder for reaching the nests.

XL. LANGLEY HALL, ACTON BURNELL.

Of the original Hall here there are no traces except the large square moat, and the gate-house. The latter is an interesting and picturesque building of two storeys to the S. of the moat. It is timber framed except the archway and S. face which are of stone. The roof is covered with stone shingles. Both the rooms on the W. have fireplaces of stone, with external chimney shafts of moulded bricks. To the west is a long castellated stone wall. The doorway and fireplaces are square beaded with plain chamfer, and show not a trace of the Tudor arch; while the S. windows have stone mullions with straight heads—no Tudor dripstones. All these details show that the building is post-Tudor; it was probably built about 1620 by Sir Humphrey Lee, and the little Chapel was also, doubtless, rebuilt by him about the same time. It is famous for the unique arrangement of the sanctuary, which is a compromise between the Puritan and Laudian mode. The communion table stands quite away from the east end, in the centre of a square railed enclosure with kneeling boards and seats on the outside of the same. A short distance S. of the gatehouse is a large timber barn which appears also to be of the same date.

BURNELL AND LEE FAMILIES.

The Burnells are a very ancient family in Shropshire, though their early pedigree is obscure. Sir

ROBERT BURNELL (I.) knight, who died in 1269, had three sons, Phillip, Hugh and

ROBERT BURNELL (II.) who was by far the most eminent of the family. He was Bishop of Bath and Wells, and Chancellor to Edward I. He built the Castle and Church at Acton Burnell, and the Bishop's Palace at Wells. Of his two brothers

SIR PHILIP (I.) died without issue in 1293, while Sir

HUGH BURNELL, died in 1287 leaving a son, Sir

PHILIP BURNELL (II.) who became heir to the great possessions of his uncle the Chancellor on the death of the latter in 1292. Philip married Maud sister to Richard Fitzalan, by whom he had a son Edward, and daughter Maud, with both of whom we must deal separately. The son

EDWARD BURNELL, during the lifetime of his father built for himself a mansion which was then known as Langley Place, and close to the same a private Chapel for the use of his tenants at Ruckley and Langley. This was known under both names Langley or Ruckley Chapel, while the mansion was known later as Langley Hall. Edward Burnell died in 1315, leaving by his wife Ella, daughter of Hugh le Despencer, an only child Joan, who married ROGER LEE of Lea near Pimhill. She took Langley as dowry to her husband of whom more anon. The lordship of Acton Burnell went to Edward's sister Maude whom he had made his heiress.

MAUDE BURNELL was twice married—first to John, Lord Lovell, and second to John de Handlow. The manor remained in the Handlow family till 1221, when it went to Lovells, descendants of Maude's first husband. Francis, Lord Lovell adhering to Richard III. and joining in insurrection against Henry VII., forfeited his whole estate, and Henry gave the same to Jasper, Earl of Bedford. He died without issue, so his estates reverted to the crown. Henry VIII. granted them to Thomas Howard, Earl of Surrey, afterwards Duke of Norfolk. The Duke sold them to John Dudley, afterwards Duke of Northumberland, who being attainted of high treason, his lands vested in Queen Mary and descended to Elizabeth. She granted them to Thomas Poyner and William Wolwrich who conveyed the same to Humphrey Lee, who was afterwards made a baronet. Thus the whole Burnell estates came to the Lee family of Langley.

ROGER DE LA LEE, who died in 1383, was the first lord of Langley, which came to him by his marriage with Joan, daughter and heiress of Sir Edward Burnell, Baron of Holgate. [Sir Edward was great nephew of Robert Burnell the great Chancellor of Edward I., and builder of Acton Burnell Castle. Nicholas Burnell, who died 1382, and whose brass is in the Church at Acton Burnell, was the Edward's nephew son of his sister Maude]. Roger's son

ROBERT LEE, who died in 1435, was sheriff in 1387. By his wife Petronilla he had a son

RALPH LEE, who died in 1480. He married Isabella, daughter of James Ridley of Alkington, by whom he had a son

RICHARD LEE (I.) who was sheriff in 1479, and died 1496. By his wife Margery, daughter and heiress of Fulke Sprencheaux, he had, with other issue, a son

FULKE LEE of Langley. He was twice married and had by his first wife Alice, daughter of Richard Cornwall, of Burington, Co. Hereford, a son

THOMAS LEE, of Langley (1500-74), who was Sheriff in 1547. He married Jane, daughter of Robert Corbet of Moreton Corbet and had, with other issue, a son

RICHARD LEE (II.) of Langley, who rebuilt Lea Hall in the parish of Preston Gobalds, on the site of an earlier house, and went to reside there. He married Eleanor daughter of Walter Wrottesley of Wrottesley, Co. Stafford, by whom he had a numerous family. He died 27 May, 1591 and was buried in Acton Burnell Church. The magnificent tomb to his memory is of later date, and was doubtless erected by his son, Sir

HUMPHREY LEE (1555-1632) who succeeded him. He was a lawyer, and there are many amusing anecdotes about him in Gough's History of Myddle. He was sheriff in 1600, and was the first Shropshire gentleman to be created a baronet by James I. in 1620. He then ceased to practice as a lawyer; bought the manor of Acton Burnell, and went to live at Langley Hall where he rebuilt the gatehouse and Chapel. He died 9th October 1632. There is a mural monument to him, made by Nicholas Stone (see note) in the church, facing the more elaborate one to his father, who—by the way—was only an esquire, not a knight as so frequently stated in guide books, etc. The pedigree in the Herald's Visitation is signed by him. He married Margaret, daughter of Reginald Corbet, of Stoke, one of the Justices of the King's Bench, and by her had four daughters and a son, Sir

RICHARD LEE (III.) (1600-60), second and last baronet. He suffered severely for his loyalty to the King in the Civil War, being reduced to compound for his estate in the sum of £3719 and £169 per annum. He died just a month before the Restoration ; having had by his wife Elizabeth daughter of Sir Edward Allan, of London five sons, one of whom, Thomas, was so great a favourite of his tutor, the very eminent and loyal Mr. Chaloner, ejected headmaster of Shrewsbury School that he says of him " Mihi semper unice perplacuit." He had also four daughters, but of these two only were married ; the eldest Rachael, to Ralph Cleaton, second son of Ralph Cleaton, of Oneley in the county of Salop ; the younger, Mary, to Edward Smythe, fourth son of a very ancient family in the bishoprick of Durham, created a baronet a few months after the Restoration, from whom are descended the present owners of the Acton Burnell estate. Lea Hall and the other portions of the estate in that neighbourhood went to Mrs. Ralph Cleaton, who transmitted them to her descendant in the third generation Richard Cleaton. He left two daughters, one of whom, Jane, married Watkin Williams Wynne, of Voelas, whose daughters sold the Lea Hall estates to Sir Thomas Tyrrwhitt Jones, Bart., They remained with his descendants until the latter part of the 19th century when they were bought by the late Mr. Frank Bibby. After his death in 1923 Lea Hall was purchased by the present owner, Mr. J. L. Mayall, who is carefully restoring it.

Note on Sir Humphrey Lee's monument. Nicholas Stone records in his diary :—" In 1632 I mad a tombe for Sir Humphrey Lee and it was sett up in the chearch of Acton Bromell in Salop for the which Sir Frances Keniston [Kynaston] payed me 66 $\frac{1}{2}$ 19s. 4d."

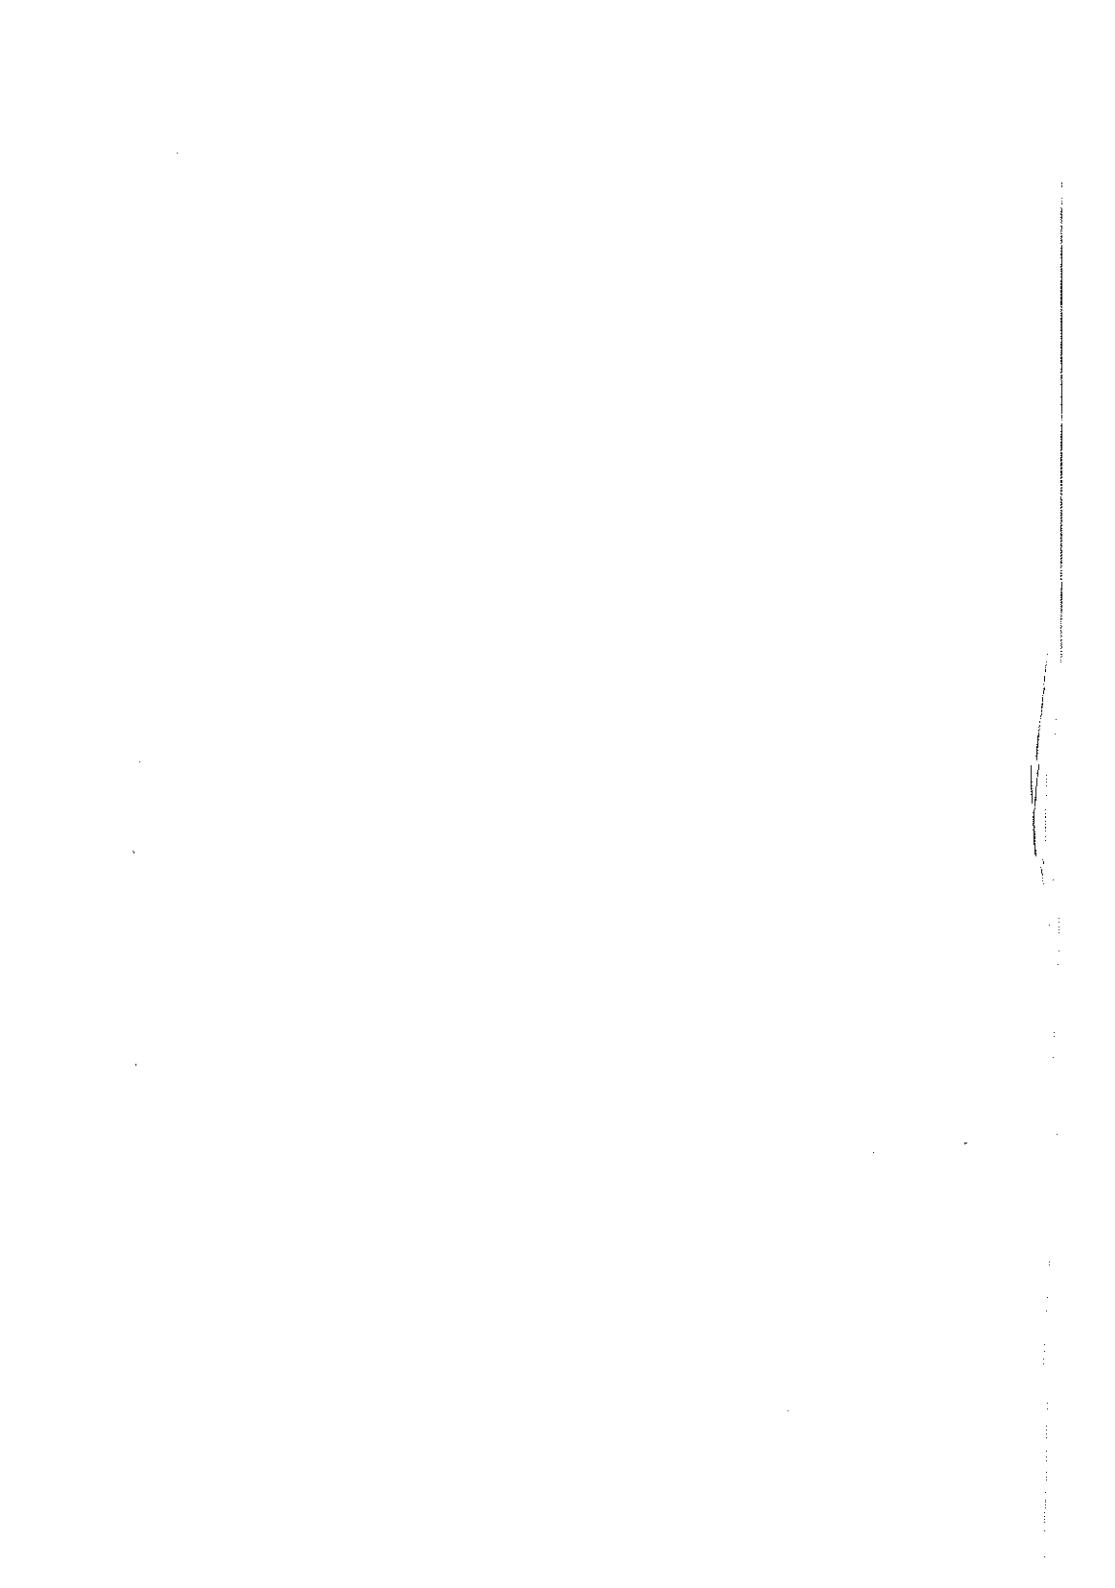

A GRANT BY WALTER DE LACY TO LUDLOW CHURCH.

By HENRY T. WEYMAN, F.S.A.

There is, among the Municipal Archives of Ludlow, a small deed, recording the grant of certain properties by Walter de Lacy nearly 700 years ago to "God and Ludlow Church" which is of great interest. The deed is very small ($7\frac{3}{8}$ inches by $3\frac{1}{2}$) but it is in most beautiful preservation (except the seal, which is gone) and the writing is as clear and distinct as the day on which it was engrossed. A photographic facsimile of the deed, the same size as the original, accompanies this account. From this, it will be seen that the grant is in Latin, and that the words are abbreviated in the usual medieval manner, but the writer has thought it best to disregard the contractions, and to set out the deed in full in the original language.

The following is offered as a free translation for the benefit of those, who, like the writer, have forgotten the little Latin which they once knew.

Know all men present and to come that I Walter de Lacy have given and granted with the assent and consent of Gilbert, my son, to God and the Church of the Blessed Apostles Philip and James and St. Laurence of Ludlow for the salvation of the souls of myself and Margery my wife and my ancestors and successors In pure and perpetual alms my Ditch of Ludlow so far as the bounds thereof were set out in the view of good and lawful men And one pound of pepper which Hugh of London has been accustomed to pay me annually thereout. I have also granted that the said Hugh and whosoever after him holds that tenement which the said Hugh now holds shall be free and quit of every tax claim and demand by me or my heirs and shall have all liberties and privileges in the Town of Ludlow and outside it as well and freely as any Burgess of the same town has had or has been accustomed to have. And that this my gift and grant may be firm and stable I have strengthened the present writing by the affixing of my seal. These being witnesses : Lord Gerard the Angevin, Adam Malerb, Richard de Fey, Walter Condet, Nicholas d 'Ebroic, Alexander de Chesney, Andrew son of Milo, Adam the Clerk, Master John writer of this writing, and many others.

It will be observed that no date is given in the deed, but it is possible to fix an approximate date with fair certainty. Walter de Lacy, Lord of Ludlow, of whom more will be said shortly, was married in or about the year 1199 to Margaret, daughter of William de Braose, by whom he had an only son, the Gilbert de Lacy, who was a consenting party to his father's Charter. The following order to the Sheriff of Herefordshire in the year 1230 shews that Gilbert de Lacy was then dead.* The deed to which Gilbert was a consenting party must, therefore, have been before that date, but probably not many years before, as Gilbert de Lacy cannot have been thirty years of age at his death.

Walter de Lacy.

Because the King has learned that Walter de Lacy did not put himself out of the ownership (non demisit se) of those lands which Gilbert de Lacy his son held in his baillivate in Co. Hereford, and that the same Gilbert held those lands from the baillivate of the same Walter for his support, the Sheriff of Herefordshire is ordered that of all the lands which were in the hands of the said Gilbert of the baillivate of the said Walter his father and which were taken into the king's hand on the occasion of the death of the said Gilbert, because it was believed that the said Walter had put himself out of the ownership (se demisasset) of the whole of the same lands, he should cause the same Walter to have full seisin, and if he should have taken anything from the said lands let him cause it to be returned.

* Mr. Eyton puts the death of Gilbert about the year 1233 (Vol. V., 269), but this is clearly an error. This mandate is printed in the Close Rolls of Henry III., 1227-1231, p. 464. A similar mandate was sent to the Sheriff of Shropshire.

Witness the King at Kempton the 25th day of December.
The probable date of the grant to the Church is 1229.

The first point of interest in Walter de Lacy's deed concerns the dedication of Ludlow Church. It will be observed that the grant is made "To God and the Church of the Blessed Apostles Philip and James and St. Laurence of Ludlow." This can only refer to the Parish Church of Ludlow, the dedication of which has always been assigned to St. Laurence alone, but this deed makes it quite clear that the real dedication was at that time understood to be to the Apostles St. Philip and St. James, as well as to St. Laurence. On this point, it is not without importance or interest that the first fair granted by Edward IV. to Ludlow in his Charter to the Town in 1461 was on the eve day and morrow of the Apostles Saints Philip and James (May 1st, &c.), and that the only fair which survives to the present day is held on the 1st May, the Feast of St. Philip and St. James, although this fair was suppressed by the William and Mary Charter of 1692. The old Latin word Feria (our word Fair) meant Festival or Saint's day, and a little research will generally elucidate the fact that where there was an ancient fair or an old village wake, it was held on the Festival of the Saint to whom the Parish Church was dedicated. This was, however, not the oldest Ludlow Fair of which we have an authentic record, but that one also bears striking testimony to the fact that the Feria was held on the day on which one of the Patron Saints of the Church was celebrated. An Inquest was held in Ludlow in the year 1275, when the Jury found that on the day of St. Laurence in the Fair of Ludlow, Arnold de Brondesley and his son, with the Beadle of Cleobury Mortimer, took and purposed to lead to Cleobury prison one, Roger de Tyrrell, the keeper of Galdeford Gate, because he would not allow them to pass with their cattle into the Fair without the pass word (sine signis). The incident itself is well known, and is set out at length in Mr. Wright's History of Ludlow,* and it is only mentioned here to shew the connection between the Festival of the Patron Saint and the Fair. Another earlier fair was granted by Edward III. in 1328 to Ludlow, to be held on the Eve of St. Katherine (November 25th) and the four days following, and though St. Katherine was not the Patron Saint of the Church, one of the Chapels in the Parish Church (the South Transept) was dedicated to her, and so was the old Chapel which formerly stood on Ludford Bridge, and it is evident from the old glass in the Church, and the carvings in the Choir, that she was held in special veneration in Ludlow. Both these fairs were, of course, long before the Charter of Edward IV., granting a Fair to be held on the Eve, Day, and Morrow of St. Philip and St. James, but this Charter almost certainly perpetuated the date of a Fair which had been held on that day centuries before.

The St. Laurence Fair also became, in like manner, a Charter Fair, having been granted to Ludlow by Edward VI. in 1552, to be held on the vigil day and morrow of that Saint, the recognised Patron Saint of the Church.

The dedication to three Saints, though uncommon, was by no means unknown in old days, and we have another instance of it in Ludlow itself, as the Church attached to St. John's Hospital on the East side of Lower Broad Street (an arch of which has been recently opened to public view) was dedicated to "The Holy Trinity, the Blessed Virgin Mary and St. John the Baptist." It is interesting to note that the Charter of this Hospital of St. John was confirmed about this very same time (c. 1221) by this very Walter de Lacy, and that part of its property, the Fulling Mill in Broad Street, was sold by his son Gilbert to the Founder and first Prior, Peter Undergod. Further, Walter Condet, who is a witness to the deed set out above, was also one of the witnesses to the confirmatory Charter to St. John's Hospital,† the original of which is in possession of the writer. The triple ascription of the Parish Church did not remain long. Whether the dedication to three Saints was found too cumbersome, or for some other reason, within fifty years after the date of Walter de Lacy's grant, St. Laurence was the only Saint recognised in the dedication, and has remained so ever since.

† Shr. Arch. Transactions, 1904, Miscellanea, p. xviii.

In 1275, the same year as that in which the incident above related took place, William, son of Nicholas Andrew, confirmed certain rents to the Community of the Burgesses of the Town of Ludlow to provide the services of "one Chaplain to celebrate perpetually in the Church of the Blessed Laurence of Ludlow." While on the morrow after Pentecost in 1284, the first recorded meeting of the well known Palmers' Gild was held in the "Church of the Blessed Laurence of Ludlow." From that day to the present no mention of the Apostles St. Philip and St. James in regard to the dedication of the Church, has ever been found. The "Feria" alone remains.

The writer has been unable to discover any particulars of the Hugh de London mentioned in the deed, or to identify the tenement which Hugh held, and out of which the pound of pepper proceeded. A pound of pepper was quite a common rent in medioeval days. It is possible that the house in question has some connection with that lane in Ludlow leading from Old Street to the Narrows, which now and for centuries past has been known as Pepper Lane.

The first witness, Gerard Andegar, or the Angevin (Gerard of Anjou), to whom the prefix "Dominus" is given, appears more than once in connection with Walter de Lacy and was probably one of his principal retainers. Various mentions are found of him in the old records, but always between the years 1220 and 1230, which accords exactly with the date of our deed. Gerard the Angevin married Emmeline, daughter of Alice de Cleiberie, and in 1221 there was a writ of Mort d'Ancestre (writ to determine the rights of heiresses jointly entitled to lands) in which Emmeline's sisters Sibil and Dionisia were plaintiffs against her husband and herself as to lands in Middleton Priors, the result of which was that Gerard and his wife gave the sisters 3½ marks, and the claim was withdrawn. In the same year, Gerard was surety in another proceeding of the same description, and about the same time he was a witness of a deed by which Andrew, son of Milo (also a witness of de Lacy's grant) became seised of land at Stokesay and Wettleton at a rent of a pound of pepper. In 1229, Gerard the Angevin was one of the Justices of Assize to hold a commission of enquiry at Shrewsbury into a dispute between Ralph de Mortimer and Roger de Burwardeley.

The most interesting document in connection with the Angevin is a grant from Walter de Lacy to him, a translation of which is as follows:—

" Know all men present and to come that I Walter de
 " Lacy have granted to Gerard le Angevin for his homage
 " and service two virgates (about 120 acres) of land which
 " Roger Badleu held in Upper Hayton, Rendering yearly
 " for the same to me and my heirs two pairs of gilded spurs
 " at the market of Ludlow."*

The word rendered "market" is nundinae, the ninth day, i.e. the market day, denoting the time, place, and day on which the Country people came into the Town to transact their business. It has been rendered Tournament in a recent dictionary,† and this would suit better the rent of the gilded spurs, but there is no record of an annual tournament at Ludlow, and the market rendering is more probably correct. The date of the above grant to Gerard of Anjou is not given, but the witnesses were William de Lacy (brother of Walter) who occurs from 1215 to 1225, Simon de Clifford of Corfham, Nicholas d 'Ebroic (also a witness to the Charter to the Church) Philip de Coleville (one of the witnesses to the Charter of St. John's Hospital in Ludlow about 1221) and others.

The prefix Dominus given to Gerard the Angevin is more commonly applied as a title of honour to a clergyman, but here probably means that Gerard was a Knight, though we have no other evidence of this.

Very little is known of the other witnesses to Walter de Lacy's grant. Adam Malerb was doubtless the same man who sold land in Akes (Rocks Green) to Peter Undergod, the founder and first custos of St. John's Hospital, the sale of which was confirmed by De Lacy himself, as Seignoral Lord. He was probably a member of the family of Malerb described by Blount as "very ancient" in the County of Hereford. It is difficult to decipher with certainty the name of the next witness, but it appears to be Richard de Fey. John de Fey is mentioned in the Close Rolls of 1224, and Beatrice de Fey in that of 1226, and probably Richard was of the same family which was connected with Chetton.

Walter Condet was also a witness to Walter de Lacy's confirmation of St. John's Hospital (being there spelt Condecoe). He is described as Steward of Ludlow in a Charter of Walter de Lacy to which he, Gerard the Angevin, and Robert de Stanton, then Constable of Ludlow, were witnesses. This Charter is of about the same date as the present deed, and is a grant by De Lacy to Robert, son of Robert Clerk of Malmeshull and Edith daughter of Sir Alan, Chaplain, of half a virgate of land in his manor of Stanton Lacy. Walter Condet was probably de Lacy's Steward of Ludlow.

Nicholas D'Ebroicis (Devereux) was a member of the well known family, one of whom afterwards became Earl of Hereford, but he does not appear in any accessible pedigree. There were in 1165 two branches of the great family, and Nicholas the witness seems to have been the lineal descendant of Walter d'Ebroicis who held three Knights fees under Hugh de Lacy.* Nicholas d'Ebroicis was himself possessed of land at Lower Hayton, Stanton Lacy, and possibly was seated there.

Alexander de Chesney or de Cheney was a member of a well known family seated at Norton and Cheney Longville, several members of which were members of Parliament for the County. This witness was seated at Norton, and was fined in 1231 by the Forest Justices for some default. About the same year he was a witness to a Charter from Walter de Clifford of Corham Castle to Walter de Lacy's daughter Katherine, conveying Burley to her. Alexander de Chesney is there described as a Knight, so that de Clifford's Charter, dated probably in 1230, is certainly later than De Lacy's grant with which we are dealing, as Chesney would have described himself as a knight in the latter, if he had been one. Alexander de Cheney bore arms, quarterly or and gules a label (5) azure.

Andrew fitz Milo seems to have been a Ludlow man, and was probably a wealthy Burgess. He first appears in 1203 when he was fined for a breach of the Assize of Cloth, the manufacture of which was then confined to Borough Towns.† About the same time, he was, by a deed, of which Gerard the Angevin was a witness as stated above, enfeoffed by Helias de Say of Stokesay in Stoke Mill, and he granted 10/- of the rent thereof to Haughmond Abbey. Andrew's son Geoffrey fitz Andrew was one of the founders of the great Palmers' Gild of Ludlow, and was more than once the Gild Alderman.

Nothing is known of Adam the Clerk, or of "Magister John the writer of this writing."

The seal of Walter de Lacy's grant is most unfortunately missing, the parchment tab only remaining. There is, however, evidence in the hand writing of Mr. Baugh, who was appointed Town Clerk of Ludlow in 1752, that the seal was then entire and was "a man riding a horse on the gallop, the reverse a heart." The confirmation by de Lacy of the Charter of St. John's Hospital, to which allusion has been made above, has its seal complete, which bears the well known arms of De Lacy, a " plain fesse," the seal of course shewing no colours. The seal on the grant with which we are now dealing seems to have been a fairly early example of the seals of which examples are given in Sir W. St. John Hope's "Heraldry for Craftsmen," page 124, &c. The horseman was probably a Knight in armour carrying his shield, which would shew the arms of the bearer "or a fesse gules." The heart on the reverse described by Mr. Baugh was probably the actual shield of De Lacy (which at that time, c. 1225, was not unlike a heart in appearance) with the fesse across it unobserved.

The most difficult problem which the deed raises is the identity of the Fossatum de Ludlow which Walter de Lacy granted to God and the Church of St. Laurence, but before attempting to deal with this, it will be well to give a few particulars of the grantor, one of the most powerful men of his day. Walter de Lacy, who has been well described as "Vir inter omnes nobiles Hibernie eminentissimus" was not only a great Irish Nobleman, but a great English Lord Marcher. He was the eldest son of Hugh de Lacy who was assassinated at Durrow in Ireland on the 25th July, 1186, of which event when the King hears in August "he is glad."*

This Hugh de Lacy, who married a daughter of the King of Connaught as his second wife, obtained from King Henry II. a Charter confirming to him the manors of Stanton Lacy and Ludlow, including the Castle of Ludlow, which had been built by one of his family, Roger de Lacy, about 1086. Walter de Lacy was a minor, probably quite young, at his Father's death, and it is not quite clear when he obtained the actual possession of Ludlow Castle and his other English estates, which had been seized into the King's hands during Walter's minority, but somewhere about 1191. These English estates were very large, comprising the Manors of Ludlow and Stanton Lacy in Shropshire, and Ewyas and Weobley in Herefordshire, and the names of Stanton Lacy and Ewyas Lacy still perpetuate the name of the great Marcher family.

In addition to these English estates, Walter de Lacy had immense possessions in Ireland, including the whole county of Meath, while he also had a great Fief in Normandy, and it is easy to see how wealthy and powerful a nobleman he must have been. Unfortunately for himself, he became one of the leaders in the Irish insurrection of 1210, which was suppressed by King John in person, and which ended in the outlawry and banishment of Walter, his brother Hugh, and his Father in law, William de Braose. These three escaped to France, but the wife and eldest son of William de Braose the Lord of Brecknock and Builth, and one of the most prominent men of his time on the Welsh border, fell into the hands of the King, who ordered them to be inclosed in a room at Corfe Castle with a sheaf of wheat and piece of bacon for their only provisions, and when this prison was opened after many days, they were found dead of hunger and thirst.* A very few years later, Walter de Lacy recovered possession of most of his estates on payment of an immense fine, and giving hostages, including his son Gilbert, to the King, but Ludlow Castle was withheld from him until 1215. From this time, de Lacy seems to have been thoroughly loyal to King John, and to have adhered to him when the great Barons revolted, and extracted Magna Charta from him. De Lacy was up to the time of his death a faithful subject of Henry III. and was treated by that King with every mark of honour and regard. His loyalty was severely tried when his great brother Hugh de Lacy, Earl of Ulster, rebelled against the King, but he stood even this test, and helped to put down the insurrection. For seven years, Walter de Lacy held the shrievalty of Herefordshire, and he kept up almost royal state in his Castle of Ludlow. The great nobleman lost his sight and suffered much in his later days and it must have been no small grief to him that his only son Gilbert died (as we have seen) before 1230, and that his only grandson, Gilbert's son, Walter, also died without issue in his own lifetime. Walter de Lacy died full of years, riches, and honours, in the year 1241, but the place of his burial is not known, neither is the usual Inquisition on his death extant. He was succeeded in his estates by his son Gilbert's two daughters, Matilda and Margaret, the former of whom was married first to Peter de Geneva, and secondly to Geoffrey de Geneville, and the latter to John de Verdon.

 Planche's Pursuivant of Arms, 50, 51.

* Itinerary of Henry II., 270.

Walter de Lacy's wife Margaret (daughter of William de Braose) who survived her husband, was the founder in 1216, strangely enough on land granted by King John, of the well known Priory of Aconbury, Herefordshire, in memory of her father and her mother and brother, who had been done to death by that king. This priory had property in Ludlow. Walter de Lacy himself granted the Charter for the foundation of St. John's Hospital in Ludlow. Such was the great Marcher Lord who granted the Fossatum de Ludlow to the Church of the Blessed Apostles Philip and James and St. Laurence of Ludlow.

And now the question arises—What was this Fossatum?

It is probably that the perambulation (in modern language, the beating of the boundaries) of the Ditch or Fosse of Ludlow, granted by de Lacy to the Church, had reference to some Inquisition or record then well known and recognised, but all trace of which has been lost. As this was a grant by the Lord of the Town, it would appear at first sight to be evident that this Fossatum was the broad ditch or fosse which surrounded the stockade which defended the Town from external attack, or at all events, a part of that fosse which had been marked out by the perambulation, and it is quite possible that this was the case, though, as will be pointed out, there are some difficulties in the way which do not admit of easy explanation.

It must be remembered that at the time of the grant (c. 1229) the Town Walls had not been erected, though they were on the very eve of being built, as in 1233 Letters Patent were granted to "the men of Ludlow" for the inclosure of their Town.

There must, however, have been a stockade of some sort with a broad ditch or fosse outside it long before the walls were built. There were many subsequent grants for the building of the walls, and they were certainly completed by the reign of Edward II. when there were payments to the keepers of the four gates of Corve Street, Old Street, Broad Street, and Galdeford. The Fossatum so granted was certainly not the ditch surrounding the Castle, which also belonged to Walter de Lacy, and was then in his hands, as, apart from the improbability of the Castle ditch being granted to anyone, and thus rendering the Castle easier of attack, this was called "Fossatum Castri" in a Town roll of the same date. In an old Town Roll of the reign of Henry III. when Roger Sherman was Bailiff of Ludlow, and in various 14th century records, there are mentions of a part of Ludlow as "Fossatum quod vocamus Christ Croft." This refers to the small quasi island upon which the chapel of St. Thomas of Canterbury stands in Dinham, with its Burial ground on the South side of it. It seemed possible that this might be the land granted to the Church of Ludlow by De Lacy, especially as it was from the earliest times devoted to sacred uses. The fact, however, that as the remains still standing shew, the Chapel was built a good many years before 1229, disposes of the theory. There is nothing to shew that it ever belonged to the Parish Church, and, alas, this old Chapel of St. Thomas has now been given over to secular and ignoble uses. The only property in Ludlow itself which belongs to the Church, other han the Church and Churchyard, is the old Rectory in College Street, close to the old Linney gate, and this, though within the walls, is practically upon them, and standing high upon the rock as it does, it can never have formed part of the Fosse.

The Church as such had no other property, so far as can be ascertained, anywhere adjoining to the old Town Walls, or indeed within the Town or parish of Ludlow, as the glebe land is all situate within the original parish of Stanton Lacy.

In the Roll of Expenses of Edward II.'s reign, there is a record of 14 pence a half year's rent paid to the Rector of Ludlow in respect of a house next Galdeford Gate, and also in 1320 an allowance to the Parson of Ludlow for Murage which had been granted to him. These payments do not seem to be repeated in later Rolls, but they may have some reference to the Fossatum in question. Though the Church in those days watched with a very jealous eye over her possessions, these rights of the Rector of Ludlow seem to have been irretrievably lost.

Up to the early part of the 19th century, the Town of Ludlow had extensive properties, but unfortunately, very expensive and prolonged litigation as to St. Leonard's Chapel and various Charity questions, involved the Town in heavy costs, and necessitated the sale of the whole of its possessions, except its public buildings. This Town property was derived from two sources. Edward IV., in right of his descent from the Mortimers, Lord of Ludlow as well as King of England, granted to the Borough by his Charter of 1461 " All our lands tenements and rents reversions and services in Ludlow, except the site of our Castle there, and a meadow called Castle Mead." This latter was a field lying under and to the west of the Castle near the River Corve, and being in the parish of Stanton Lacy, need not be considered further. It may be said in passing, that this meadow was retained for martial exercises, and for the better enjoyment of Ludlow Castle. These lands which King Edward IV. granted to the Borough were his family property, and were called the Demesne lands, i.e. the lands held by the Lord for his own use. These lands were certainly never the property of the Church.

It is common knowledge that there was in Ludlow a very wealthy society called The Palmers' Gild, which had existed from a very early date (tradition says from the time of Edward the Confessor) and which was constituted or reconstituted in 1284. This Gild had amassed very large possessions in Ludlow and elsewhere through the pious contributions of its members. This Gild provided numerous Priests for the services of the various Chantries in Ludlow Church, but though the property of the Gild was given to it for religious, charitable, and pious uses, this property was never the property of the Church, nor of its Rector. Upon the Suppression of the Religious Houses, Chantries, &c., in the 16th Century, these possessions of the Gild were, to avoid forfeiture of them, surrendered to the King, and by him granted to the Corporation of Ludlow for charitable purposes, amongst others, the payment of a Preacher and Reader for the Parish Church (in lieu of the old Chantry priests), the maintenance of the Grammar School, and a provision for thirty-three poor people, this doubtless perpetuating, as far as possible, the objects which had been maintained by the old Palmers' Gild. The lands so given to the Corporation for charitable uses were called Gild Lands, as distinguished from the Demesne lands granted by Edward IV.

It was chiefly in respect of these lands that the litigation arose which proved so disastrous to the Town but which, at any rate, preserved the possessions of the Charities.

There is, in the Borough Record Room, an old clasp book, which was compiled about 1661, and which shews which were the Gild lands, and which the demesne lands, but it throws no light on the question of the Fossatum granted to the Church in or about 1229, and as neither the Demesne lands, nor the Gild lands, were ever the property of the Church, it does not seem profitable to consider these lands in detail.

It may be useful for a moment to consider the date of de Lacy's grant and the history of the Church. The date of the former is between 1225 and 1230. Only 25 years before this grant, the Church had been so greatly extended as to amount to a rebuilding. An old MS. to which, supported as it is by architectural evidence, Dr. Cranage, in his Churches of Shropshire, thinks that some weight must be given, states that in 1199 the then existing Church was found too small for the wants of the Parishioners, and had to be extended, and it proceeds "Quocirca oportuit quendam terrae tumulum magnum ad occidentem ecclesiae solo coaequare qua murus ejusdem debuit extendi," or being interpreted "Wherefore it behoved them to level a certain great mound of earth to the west of the Church, in which direction the wall (of the Church) was to be extended." The work of clearing the great mound of earth and the reconstruction of the Church cannot have been done in a day, and must probably have taken some years to complete. At this time, it must again be noted that the Town Walls had not been erected, but they were built within a very few years after 1230, so that we have the rebuilding of the Church, De Lacy's grant to the Church, and the erection of the Town Walls, within about thirty years. It may well be that the grant had some reference to the enlargement of the Church, which was then in contemplation.

It has been suggested that this Fossatum was a field which, as long ago as the reign of Edward IV, was called The Lord's Orchard. This land lies outside the Town Walls between the old Dinham and Mill Street gates, stretching down to the River Teme, but it did not comprise the Town Ditch, as it was described in a 16th century document, as extending "from the Town Ditch without Dinham Gate to Mill Gate." This Lord's Orchard, a suggestive name, was never the property of the Church, nor of the Gild.

It is probable that the Fossatum mentioned in the old deed, dated in the far off reign of Henry III, was the Town fosse, but that when the Town Walls were built shortly after its date, some re-arrangement became necessary, and that there was an exchange of lands, or something of that description, between Walter De Lacy and the Church, and that possibly the latter obtained the Old Rectory, or some glebe land for the Town Ditch, but this is only surmise, and if it is correct, no record of any such transaction has been handed down to us. It is a matter of unavailing regret to the writer that he has been unable to solve the problem of what the Fossatum was which the great Marcher Lord gave to "The Church of the Blessed Apostles Philip and James and St. Laurence of Ludlow," but he has stated all the facts within his knowledge, in the hope that the future historian of Ludlow may find a key to the puzzle.

It is, at any rate, worth while to rescue from oblivion this grant of de Lacy, which throws a new light on the dedication of the glorious old Church of Ludlow, and forms a fragment well nigh 700 years old, of the history of Ludlow, which the writer loves so well.
